County's Relief Load Heaviest in Two Years

APPLICATIONS FOR AID SOAR, 500 ON ROLLS

$11,000 Left in Relief Fund Will Last Less Than Two Months, Official Says.

LOOK FOR STATE TO ACT

Slackened Industry, Drop in WPA Projects Blamed for Rise in Relief Needs.

Richland county's relief problem, like that of most of the other Ohio counties, hung as a menacing cloud over the county relief officials today, the solution resting entirely with the state legislature which convenes in two weeks.

With 500 cases on the county relief rolls, the highest mark in nearly two years, the county's $11,000 relief fund will last less than two months unless the state takes immediate action to set up a new program for relief, Deputy Auditor Arthur S. Beck said.

Miss Mildred Armstrong, county relief director, was equally pessimistic.

Outlook Dark.

"The outlook for the winter is extremely dark," she said. "We have had 125 applications for relief since Nov. 1 and have added about 100 of them to the rolls. At that rate, the county will soon be placed in the position of either having to turn down requests for help or seek outside financial help."

The immediate problem is centered in Mansfield, where industry has slackened in the past month and WPA projects have been discontinued, Miss Armstrong pointed out

Most of the townships in the county have handled their own relief loads since last spring and they expected little trouble in taking care of their indigent. The arrival of cold weather, however, will increase the load, officials said.

200 On Rolls In Summer.

The county's set-up, which provides for Mansfield, Madison township and Shelby, cared for some 200 relief clients throughout the summer with funds from a $4,000 monthly allocation from relief bonds.

The county had sufficient funds for interest and payments on the Ex-Official Who Embezzled $36,000, Granted Release.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— W. Merle Cortner, former chief bond clerk in the state treasurer's office, who was sentenced to serve from one to 10 years in the Ohio penitentiary for embezzlement, today was paroled by the state parole board, effective Sept. 1, 1938.

Cortner pleaded guilty to embezzling $600 although state auditors charged his shortage was $36,513. He was admitted to the penitentiary on Oct. 31, 1935, hence he will have served 34 months of his sentence when his parole is effective.

The state is still trying to collect the shortage. Suit is pending in Franklin county courts against Harry S. Day, then state treasurer and his bondsmen, for the $36,513.

Cortner was charged with clipping coupons from bonds held by the state treasurer and cashing them.

Life's Hectic as Film Idol, But Dick Powell Isn't Complaining

I'd Be Out of Job If It Wasn't, He Tells News-Journal Writer.

By JANE WILLIAMS

HAD LUNCH yesterday with a man who made $75 a week ten years ago, and this week is being paid $12,500 for two brief appearances twice a day for eight days. Trailed around with him all day and decided that no matter what the movie stars are paid, it isn't enough. The Great American Public demands too much of its idols.

Not that Dick Powell, Warner Brothers star, who is the chief attraction at the Cleveland Auto Show this week, is complaining; in fact, he points out that it is just another way of making a living, with better returns than any other kind of work—even though Uncle Sam takes the lion's share of his earnings.

But then Dick is young, eager, ambitious, desperately anxious to please that American Public, so that he can stay in pictures long enough to secure his future and that of his family.

For seven hours yesterday I had an opportunity to observe what he pays for his place in the sun. And believe me, it takes infinite patience and tolerance, a level head and rigid self discipline.

At his apartment in the Lake Shore hotel where he and his wife (Joan Blondell) are staying, his personal representative, Down

BULLETIN

TOKYO—(U.P.)—Members of the house of representatives adopted a manifesto today urging the government to withdraw from the nine-power treaty in retaliation for denunciation of Japan's course in China at the Brussels far eastern conference.

BRUSSELS—(U.P.)—Any international effort for concerted action to halt Japan's war on China is unlikely to succeed because the United States is unlikely to modify its neutrality law, diplomatic sources at the far eastern peace conference asserted today.

Fifteen nations have pledged themselves to consider such action and with this threat the 19-nation far eastern conference recessed for one week.

The delegates looked to Washington to see whether the United States would make such action possible by agreeing to co-operate. The prevailing opinion was that congress would not permit the United States to join other powers in a "quarantine" of Japan.

In event congress takes no action to modify the act, it was said, the conference will reconvene next Monday probably to adopt a resolution recording its decision to adjourn indefinitely.

The United States, Great Britain, France, Belgium, Canada, China, South Africa, Australia, Bolivia, India, Mexico, The Netherlands, New Zealand, Portugal and Russia approved the declaration, Denmark, Norway and Sweden abstained.

Found: 3 Missing Ballots, Recount Goes on Tonight

Election Board Keeps Details of Lexington Mix-Up Secret—Clerk Race to Be Decided Finally.

BULLETIN

Deputy Clerk Walter Underwood of the election board revealed this afternoon that the three ballots were found sticking to the inside of an envelope in the office of Clerk of Courts Fred R. Zellner. The missing ballots, he said, had been kept separate from the others by the Lexington precinct judges, apparently because there was a question as to whether they had been marked properly.

The county board of elections' search for Lexington's three missing ballots had produced results today, but only election officials knew what the results were and they refused to tell.

It will all come out in a recount at 7:30 p. m. today when the ballots will be counted for the third time since the election two weeks ago to determine who was elected clerk of Lexington.

Lose By One Vote.

Loss of the ballots was discovered Friday night when the election board completed a recount of the votes for clerk at the request of J. H. Wiles, incumbent, defeated for re-election by one vote.

Wiles was edged out by his opponent, Robert Lawrence, in the Nov. 2 election. The official count gave Lawrence 125 votes to 124 for Wiles.

Both George C. Balliet, president of the board of elections, and Arliss F. Porter, clerk, declined to say where or how the ballots were found.

"Mr Porter is clerk and any information will have to come from him," Balliet, said

"It might be embarrassing to some of the election officials if I revealed advance information on the finding of the ballots," Porter declared, "so that will have to wait until after the recount is made tonight."

In the event the three additional ballots are ruled legal and make the vote for clerk a tie, the winner will be decided by the flip of a coin. The recount made last week left the first count of votes unchanged.

PRESIDENT ILL

Runs Fever From 'Bad' Tooth; Garner Has One Pulled.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt cancelled all his engagements today because of a painfully infected tooth while Vice President Garner was having one pulled.

Mr. Roosevelt's trouble was more serious. It developed last night, after dinner and caused the president to lose considerable sleep.

A naval dentist called to the White House this morning found the tooth infected. Dr. Ross T. McIntire, the president's naval physician, then was consulted and found the president had a slight temperature.

Shortly afterward officials announced cancellation of all engagements for the day, including the usual Tuesday press conference.

Pittsburgh Man Found Hanging In Shanty Near School.

YOUNGSTOWN — (AP) — The body of a man identified as Thomas Donaldson Kates, about 40, of Pittsburgh, believed to be the victim of a "one-way ride", was found hanging today in a coal shed at lonely Boyer school, about 15 miles southwest of here.

Tracks in the mud led Deputy Sheriffs John Riesen and Paul Clemens to believe the man was murdered.

Mine Union, Operators Tentatively Agree On New Contract.

HAZELTON, Pa.—(AP)—A tentative agreement extending the present contract between the United Mine Workers and Antracite Mine Operators to April 30, 1939, was announced today by John Boylan, secretary of the anthracite conciliation board.

The agreement extends for one year the contract of May 7, 1936 which will expire April 30, 1938.

Mailmen's Packs Filled Today With Blanks For Jobless Count

If the mailman seemed to be staggering under an unusual load of mail this morning, don't get the idea that the Christmas rush has set in early—it's the federal unemployment census, and the mailmen, 80 of them, were delivering some 16,000 questionnaires to every home in Mansfield and on the rural routes.

The questionnaires are to be filled out by persons who are unemployed, or only partially employed, and placed in the mail not later than Nov. 20. From the census, the government expects to be able to compile an accurate figure on the number of unemployed workers in the nation, and take steps toward finding employment for them.

A questionnaire was to be left at every home in the city. On it are 14 questions, relating to the status of each worker.

Tabulation of the results of the census will begin in Washington as soon as the cards are returned. A complete report to the president by John M. Biggers, Toledo, administrator of the census, is expected late in December, government officials said.

To check accuracy of the count the government has ordered a house-to-house canvass census of some 2,000,000 persons. This count also will be conducted by the postoffice department.

Three nation-wide radio broadcasts are scheduled for today to explain how the questionnaire should be answered.

One of the broadcasts is scheduled for 10:45 p. m., over WTAM, Cleveland.

Senate Leaders Battle Effort To Bring Lynching Measure Up For Early Hearing.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Senator Byrnes (D-SC) told the senate today leaders had decided not to permit immediate consideration of the Government Reorganization bill—only measure on the administartion program ready for debate.

WASHINGTON— (AP) —President Roosevelt's legislative program bogged down today in both house and senate before the special session was fully under way.

Failure of the agriculture committees to have farm bills ready for either chamber may cost the administration a full week out of the scheduled five-week session.

In the senate, the situation was even more serious from an administration standpoint. Leaders were striving desperately to hold back consideration of the anti-lynching bill, which involved the possibility of a filibuster.

Supporters Won't Yield.

Friends of the anti-lynching measure, which occupied a preferred spot on the senate calendar, refused to give way for debates on the government re-organization bill—only measure on the president's program ready for action.

To prevent the anti-lynching bill from pre-empting the senate floor indefinitely, Democratic Leader Barkley was considering a proposal to idle the week away in the hope that a farm bill could be framed by next week.

Chairman Smith (D-S. C.) called the divided agriculture committee together to begin drafting a bill, but neither he nor any other member would forecast prompt agreement.

STARS MENACED

Los Angeles Probes Plot to Bomb Homes of Stars.

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Leaders of an alleged anti-semitic plot to bomb Jewish film notables' homes are under surveillance, but no arrests have been made since the district attorney's office began an inquiry six weeks ago, Chief Investigator Eugene Williams said today.

"Apparently the conspiracy never got beyond the conversational stage," Williams added He did not explain why he disclosed the plot.

Early in October, he said, he received complaints of secret anti-semetic meetings in Pasadena at which a purported "execution list" was being drawn.

Several persons were questioned but undercover operatives failed to obtain evidence to justify arrests, Williams said.

ACTOR DIES OF PISTOL WOUNDS

Mysterious Gunman's Bullet Wounds End in Death.

HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—Hymie Miller, who could act an underworld part well enough to be in the movies, died last night of four bullet wounds which he said were inflicted by a gunman who invaded his bedroom.

Today he was to have started work at the Warner Brothers studio, in the role of a gangster. The picture is called "A Slight Case of Murder."

Detectives were waiting at his hospital room door, hoping that he would survive long enough to give them more information, but Miller expired after several blood transfusions without providing a clue.

Accused Ex-Inmate—Victim

With the death of Dr. James I. Seder, 79-year-old Huntington, W. Va., minister and former Anti-Saloon League leader, shown above, following his abduction by three men, authorities announced they would seek the death penalty for the accused abductors. One of the there accused is John Travis, shown at left, who was paroled from the Ohio State reformatory here. Orville Adkins, also paroled from the Mansfield institution, and Arnett Booth, an ex-convict, are the others accused.

CHINESE MOVE CAPITAL WEST

Government Flees Nanking as Japanese Armies Smash Way Through Defenses.

NANKING—(AP)—The government decided tonight to move to Hankow, on the Yangtze nearly 300 miles to the west, because of the threat to the capital by Japanese armies advancing from Shanghai.

The civil departments will be moved, but officials emphasized that this did not mean abandonment of the capital and avowed that the army would defend Nanking until the last with Chiang Kai-Shek, premier-generalissimo, himself in command.

"If the Japanese break through our defenses, our army will retreat fighting for China, determined against compromise or capitulation," said a high official.

Chinese had viewed with increasing concern the advance of Japanese troops on the "Hindenburg" line of Chinese defenses some 125 miles southeast of here.

Meanwhile Japanese planes dumped bombs over a widespread area of the Shanghai peninsula to smooth a way to Nanking for troops and naval vessels.

Foreign military observers predicted the Japanese could reach Nanking within a month.

Points bombarded included Fushan, Yangtze river port on the water route to Nanking, and Chinese troop concentrations between the Chinese defense lines and Nanking.

Japan's North China forces were approaching the Yellow river, five miles north of Tsinanfu. To stem the advance, Chinese were said to have blown up the Tientsin-Pukow railway bridge spanning the river opposite the provincial capital. Most of the refugees leaving Tsinanfu headed for Tsingtao, on the seacoast.

One column of Japan's Shanghai armies was almost within sight of Soochow, city of 260,000 about 50 miles west of Shanghai. Miss Sarah Glenn of Chester, S. C., arrived at Nanking today and reported Soochow virtually destroyed following heavy Japanese bombardment.

Broke Window To Keep His 'Date'

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — The new creases in his trousers cost William Henry Snyder, jr, 27, $5.65.

He paid that amount for breaking a window to get his suit after Mrs. Sarah Spitler's tailor shop had closed for the night. Snyder told the judge he had to have the suit for a date.

CRASH KILLS 12

Belgian Plane Passengers Burned in Wreckage.

LONDON—(UP)—Twelve persons were reported killed today when an airliner bound to London from Brussels crashed in flames near Ostend, Belgium.

An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Ostend said the plane was bound to London from Frankfurt via Brussels.

The dispatch said the plane, belonging to the Belgian S.S.B.E.N.A. line, was lost in a thick fog which made it difficult for the pilot to locate the airport for a forced landing.

The landing lights were switched on and flares were lighted, but near the airdrome the plane hit a chimney and crashed. The victims were burned to death.

MRS. ROOSEVELT IN PEACE PLEA

'Make Life Worth Living,' She Tells Cleveland Audience.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Her strenuous lecture tour near an end, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the most active president's wife in public life in the history of the nation, rested today before departing for Akron where she will deliver another address tonight.

Coming to Cleveland from Kansas City, Mo., Mrs. Roosevelt delivered an address on peace here last night in which she declared the "cure for war is too big an undertaking for any administration"

"One way toward achievement of peace," she said, "is for us to set our house in order. Make life so worth living for all people that they will not want to go to war."

She said the United States had moved toward peace by neutrality legislation which "is probably good, but experimental."

Opening of Hunting Season's Safe and Sane; No One Killed

The first day of the hunting season may not have been a complete success from the amount of game bagged, but it was a safe and sane beginning, state-wide reports showed today.

No hunters were fatally wounded in the state although two died from heart attacks as the annual army of sportsmen took to the fields at noon yesterday. There were no injuries reported in the Richland county area. Seven in all were reported wounded in Ohio.

Returning hunters in Mansfield brought evidence of varying success. Some of them begged the limit of five rabbits and two pheasants. A lot more complained of the dreary day and heavy footing which, they said, made the rabbits and pheasants seek cover and kept them out of the reach of guns.

The opinion ws general that both cottontails and birds are more numerous this year than in any recent season.

At Hall's Corners, near Marysville, the game was so plentiful that 25 hunters were taken into custody by game wardens and charged with having hen pheasants, quail and too many rabbits in their possession. There is no open season on hen pheasants or quail.

The opening day toll was the lightest in years. Conservation officials attributed it to the fact that the season did not get under way until noon, eliminating the possibility of badly aimed shots in the semi-darkness of early morning.

ALBANY, N. Y.—(U.P.)—State police reported today they had been informed that an automobile believed to be carrying the three escaped O'Connell kidnapers was sighted near Waterloo, Seneca county.

JAMESVILLE, N. Y. —(AP)—Three men convicted of the kidnaping of John J. O'Connell, jr., of Albany, escaped today in daring fashion from the Onondaga county jail here after they had bound and gagged four keepers, a matron and kidnaped another keeper.

The prisoners were Percy Geary and John Oley of Albany, sentenced to 77 years, and Harold Crowley of New York City, who was given a 28-year term.

H. H. Paddock, superintendent of the prison, said the escape occurred sometime between 2:35 and 2:45 (EST) this morning.

Sawed Cell Bars.

Paddock said the three convicts were armed with two guns. Reconstructing the escape, Paddock said the bars of one of the cells in which the prisoners were confined were sawed and placed together with chewing gum to avoid detection.

When John Corbett, a keeper, entered the cell block on the ground floor to punch a clock, a routine duty, one of the prisoners pounced on him, bound him with sheets taken from the cell bed and took his keys. The prisoner then liberated the other two convicts and the trio made their way to the guard room on the same floor, Paddock said.

There they encountered three keepers, Leroy Pease, Earl Brown and Francis Crowley, Paddock related.

They bound and gagged them with sheets and were ready to leave the room when Mrs. Nellie Hills, a matron, entered, Paddock said.

Mrs. Hills also was bound and left in the guard room with the REAL WINTER!

That's Weatherman's Promise As Cold Grips Mid-West.

The snow and chill of the past three days were only a sample of what to expect tonight and Wednesday when real winter is due to blow in from the west, the state weather bureau promised today.

Included in the forecast was the prediction of "rain changing to snow tonight, followed by fair and colder Wednesday."

Temperatures throughout the middle west were considerably below normal today and heavy snow fell in Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma. Chicago had snow flurries and freezing temperatures, with the prospect of 25 degrees by tomorrow morning.

Yesterday the top mercury reading was 36 degrees here. During the day the temperature varied only four degrees. The reading at noon today was 38.

BIERLY CITED ON TRAFFIC CHARGE

G. O. P. Head Charged With Failing to Stop for School Bus.

Glenn L. Bierly, chairman of the Richland county Republican executive committee and unsuccessful candidate for mayor in the Nov. 2 election, was arrested by Mansfield police today on a warrant from Wayne county, charging him with failure to stop for a school bus while unloading passengers on the highway.

Wayne county authorities said Bierly is accused of failing to stop for the school bus yesterday afternoon just outside of Wooster on route 30.

A recognizance bond with the warrant were returned to the Wayne county sheriff today by Police Chief Meade K. Bates. Bierly is to appear in court in Wooster tomorrow afternoon.

British Envoy Leaves for 'Peace Talk' With Hitler

DIPLOMAT TO SEEK VIEWS OF NAZI LEADERS

Observers See Possibility That Eden Will Follow With Visit to Duce.

LONDON—(U.P.)—Viscount Halifax, one of Britain's most expert political negotiators, leaves for Berlin today to talk European peace with Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, Col.-Gen. Hermann Goering, his right hand man, and other Nazi leaders.

British spokesmen insisted that any talks Halifax might engage in would be exploratory, to sound out the possibilities of a later agreement on European pacification.

Visit of Major Importance. . .

Nevertheless, the visit was regarded as of major importance, and talk started today of a follow-up visit to Rome by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who would engage in talks with County Galeazzo, Italian foreign minister, and presumably with Premier Benito Mussolini.

It was understood here that Lord Halifax, with the authorization of the cabinet, would tell Hitler and Goering that Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain was eager to solve the problems outstanding among the big western European powers and that he would not insist, as part of any agreement, that Germany return to the League of Nations. There were reports, however, that Lord Halifax might suggest the possibility of a revision of the league covenant which would make more attractive to Germany.

Any such revision would entail complete separation of the hated Versailles treaty from the covenant, and thus remove the league's present responsibility for enforcing it.

Would Return Colonies.

Paris was the principal center for these reports, which suggested that, if Germany joined a revamped league, the powers in return might agree to rewrite mandate clauses of the Versailles treaty so as to give Germany, over a period of time, at least part of the colonies seized from her after the World war.

German leaders have insisted strongly that no effort to decrease the co-operation between Germany and Italy under their "Berlin-Rome axis" would be welcomed. Nevertheless, it was indicated that both Britain and Germany regarded friendship with each other as of almost paramount importance.

Sheriff Denies Slaying, Takes Stand Again

Up and Down THE STREET

After a long and apparently unsuccessful search for a pair of tickets to the Pittsburgh-Nebraska football game last Saturday at Pittsburgh, H. W. Arlin, president of the Mansfield board of education, found himself with six of the coveted ducats just before game time. Arlin called officials at both schools before the game only to be told that all tickets were sold. In Pittsburgh he finally located two at a supply agency. A short time later he had a call from C. L. VanDerau, manager of manufacturing at the Mansfield Westinghouse plant, offering him two more, and about the same time the University of Pittsburgh office reported that two tickets had been turned in and were being held for him.

While dining at home on macaroni and cheese, a dish he detests by the way, his wife reminded him of his speaking engagement. He left immediately, glad to get away from the macaroni and cheese—and set down to a steak dinner. But on his arrival he found that his appetite had left him. His wife has suggested the purchase of a note book.

TELLS JURY HE WENT TO PARTY WITH DIVORCEE

POMEROY, O.—(U.P.)—Roscoe O. Fowler, suspended Meigs county sheriff, resumed his defense today after denying he dealth the blackjack blow that the prosecution contends caused the death of Lafe Williamson, Republican leader, following an Eagles club dance last June.

Speaking in a calm voice, Fowler said he had never quarreled with Williamson except "about 25 years ago when we were supposed to have had an argument at a basketball game."

Appearing as the first defense witness yesterday, the sheriff told of attending the Saturday night party at the clubrooms with Miss Annette Ashworth, his secretary, and Mrs. Marcella Hodge, attractive divorcee.

Admits He Erred.

He said he had erred earlier when he said Deputy Sheriff Hank Young and Mrs. Young had accompanied him and Mrs. Hodge to the jail kitchen "for sandwiches" following the dance, and admitted he was alone with the divorcee.

"I wanted to protect Mrs. Hodge as having been there with me," he said.

Fowler said he didn't learn of Williamson's plight until 8:30 a. m. Sunday, about six hours after the fatal blow had been dealt. He went to the hospital, he said, and asked Williamson who struck him.

"I asked him several questions" Fowler testified. "He kind of mumbled. We couldn't distinguish what he said."

Fowler said he called at the hospital on two occasions and asked to be notified when Williamson was rational so that he could get a statement.

The sheriff said he had several theories as to who hit the Republican leader.

"I thought he might have stopped, and said something to some woman and that her husband hit him."

Whoever hit, Fowler asserted, apparently didn't intend to hurt him.

Fowler said Phil Williamson, the victim's brother, asked that the investigation be dropped.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

WHILE THE White House and the treasury are stressing the state of the federal finances to a concerned country and proposing drastic steps to regain control, it might simplify the job and at any rate would be interesting and timely if they would be candid about why the administration keeps it books and juggles it figures and funds in a way for which it would proceed criminally against a private citizen or corporation.

The government requires from private business clear and honest statements and it punishes those who violate this perfectly proper law by fines and imprisonment. Yet, as Senator Byrd and others repeatedly have pointed out, its own statements are tricky, deceptive and purposely misleading. In at least three separate directions, is is doing not only indefensible but incredibly foolish things, which, in addition to concealing the realities from the public, permit the administration to fool itself and make it impossible to rely upon its statements.

AGAIN AND AGAIN this charge has been made, but the practice is neither abandoned nor changed. For example, there is the gross exaggeration of the credits and recoverable assets shown in the government reports—particularly in the case of the RFC. The treasury purchased $500,000 of stock and $4,000,000,000 of the notes of this corporation, which it carries on the treasury statement at face value, conveying the impression that the total assets represent sound values and ultimately will be recovered into the treasury to reduce the public debt.

This as Senator Byrd asserted in Mr. Morganthau's presence the other night, simply is not true. On the contrary, $2,500,000,000 of RFC funds have been diverted for relief expenditures and to pay regular expenses of other departments, none of which are recoverable. "So," says Senator Byrd, "the stock of the RFC is valueless and the notes are not worth more than 50 cents on the dollar in recoverable assets. Yet, only recently the corporation issued a financial statement claiming a surplus of $150,000,000 as of December 31, last."

A SECOND example of administration financial practice which would be condemned in a private corporation is the double budget. The allegations made by Mr Byrd on this score are devastating. "I declare," he said, "that our expenses are not being leveled off on the $7,000,000,000 basis because of the gradual transfer of emergency expenditures to the regular budget. In 1934 the government adopted the two-budget system: one for emeregncy and the other for regular expenses. We have two budgets but we have only one treasury. In 1934 the regular budget was $2,700,000,000. In 1938 the regular budget is $5,400,000,000—an increase of one hundred per cent in four years."

"A REDUCTION is shown in the statement of recovery and relief expenditures because many of the items of emergency expenditures have been made permanent by transfer to the regular budget. But there has been no reduction in total expenditures; we will spend as much or more in 1938 than we spent in 1937 or in any previous depression year."

"At best it is difficult to comprehend the expenditure of billions, but the confusion has been greatly increased by this device of keeping two budgets. When the administration announces a reduction in spending for recovery and relief, at once we begin to feel better and to think that finally we can look forward to a real reduction, but later we find the regular budget has been increased and the total is as much or more. We have juggled expenditures back and forth from one budget to the other, but the taxpayers pay the bill for both budgets. The two-budget system has merely aggravated the general confusion.'"

TO THAT indictment there is no answer. Those charges are merely ignored by the executive and his spokesmen. So, too, is the fact that in the 1937-38 budget $230,000,000 of social security taxes are used for regular expenses. The effect of this is to reduce the deficit by the use of a tax, collected and paid for the specific purpose of providing old-age security.

One can imagine the administration denunciation of a corporation which used the income of a trust fund dedicated to the aged for current expenses. These are the major instances of financial malpractice which have grown up under the Roosevelt administration and which are useful in concealing the true state of the mess in which we are. No greater contribution could be made to the effort to get back on an even keel than an insistence upon the part of congress that this sort of thing be stopped—and candor take the place of calculated deceit and plain misrepresentation in governmental statements.

RYAN PROMISES TO "TELL ALL" ABOUT MYSTERIOUS MARRIAGE

HICKORY, N. C.—(UP)—Basil Ryan, youthful heir to the Thomas Fortune Ryan copper millions, announced today that he would stay in Hickory and "bring into the open" all the mysterious circumstances surrounding his marriage to Martha Barkley, of Morgantown, N. C.

The wealthy New York youth was released from Memorial hospital late yesterday. He had been there for an "intestinal disorder" treatment since Nov 5, the day after he married Miss Barkley, a 21-year-old mother of a two-months old child.

Ryan said the only genuine statements made concerning the wedding was the one made by his former attorney, C. W. Bagby, who said the marriage ceremony was performed while Ryan was "full of North Carolina corn." Ryan was a victim of a weakness for liquor, Bagby said.

Ryan, who engaged W. A. Self to act as his attorney after Bagby resigned said he had talked with his wife and told her there was "no love between us and we might as well come out in the open about the whole affair."

The bride, asserting that Ryan was not intoxicated when he married her, previously had said she refused to believe her husband regretted the marriage unless he himself told her so.

Ryan said:

"It was just a case of too much liquor.

"I regret deeply the situation in which the young lady and her family are placed."

NEW SERVICE

Taxicabs Take Imbibers Home Along With Their Cars.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — A new taxicab service for those who have imbibed too freely, modeled after New York's famous "Blotto" service, has been started by a cab company here.

According to Joseph F. Palumbo, cab company manager, the service will be available between 10 p. m. and 4 a. m. A taxicab will take the celebrator home and a clear-headed chauffeur will follow in the merrymaker's automobile.

The cost will be a round trip meter fare plus expenses for the chauffeur, dubbed by the cab company "Mr. Do-Do."

Palumbo said the plan had the backing of Columbus Police Chief John Dunn.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — A vast army of volunteer workers went into action today as many Ohio cities launched community chest campaigns.

Cleveland's workers numbering 15,000 seek to raise $3,450,000 for the needy, while at Canton 450 workers have set their goal at $349,550. Akron's fund army seeks $454,351 and Alliance $39,300.

HEADS CRAWFORD COUNTY SCHOOLS

Milton Harmon, Mt. Zion, Succeeds Late K. M. Whaley.

BUCYRUS — Milton Harmon, principal of Mt. Zion rural school, was appointed superintendent of Crawford county schools last night by the Crawford county board of education.

Harmon, a graduate of Ohio State university, started teaching 16 years ago at Mt. Zion. He also received his masters' degree at Ohio State.

The new superintendent succeeds K. M. Whaley who died recently. The school board elected Harmon by a 3 to 2 vote, giving him a contract until Aug. 1, 1938. He takes over his new duties imediately.

FORMER MAYOR WINS PAY FIGHT

McNair of Pittsburgh to Get $1,000 Under Court's Ruling.

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — Former Mayor William McNair of Pittsburgh won his fight in Pennsylvania supreme court to compel Allegheny county to pay him $1,000 he claimed as salary under a state law of 1861.

The act provided for payment of $1,000 a year to the mayor in lieu of fees formerly chargeable to the county for hearing vagrancy, drunkenness, and disorderly conduct cases.

The county claimed the act was "repealed by implication" by subsequent acts passed by the state legislature in 1867 and 1868.

BOY OF 9 SKIPS GRADE SCHOOL

Prodigy Knew A B C's When 25 Months Old; He's Now In High School.

CORVALLIS, Ore.—(UP)—Tiny bespectacled Alexander Hull, jr., who never went to grade school but attended college classes has entered a high school here at the age of 9.

Alexander was 25 months old when he knew the A B C's and four months later he could write his name. When he reached the age of 4—he could and did—read everything, occasionally knocking off a few minutes to recite the multiplication tables through 12.

When young Alexander was 6, his father who is a member of the general extension system at Oregon State college, let the boy enroll in his harmony class. The youth already had two years practice on the piano and could play Mozart D minor fantasia in concert. He was further advanced than the undergraduates in the class.

Both of the boy's parents are professional teachers and accomplished musicians. His father taught him music and Spanish and the mother instructed him in elementary subjects. They permitted him to collect a library on widely varied subjects.

He was not permitted to attend grade school as the parents believed a mentally advanced child is held back, annoyed and made lazy by the slowness and simplicity of average children class instruction procedure.

Dalhover Awaits Possible Death Verdict by Jury

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — (AP) — Special government agents, heavily-armed and taking no chances, kept alert eyes glued today on a secret cell holding James Dalhover, one-time Brady "triggerman," who apparently had nothing to do except speculate over what penalty a federal jury would decide Dec 6 he must pay for slaying State Policeman Paul V. Minneman.

U. S. Marshal A. W. Hosinski said Dalhover was being held incommunicado, and that no pictures nor interviews would be permitted. The special agents worked in eight-hour shifts and declined to disclose any comments the pint-sized gunman might have made.

Dalhover, captured at Bangor, Me., Oct. 12 by federal agents who killed his companions, Alfred Brady and Clarence Lee Shaffer, jr., pleaded guilty at Hammond yesterday to slaying Minneman last May 25 after the $2,668 robbery of the Goodland (Ind.) State bank.

ACCUSED OF POISONING

ALLIANCE—(U.P.)—Police held Mrs Ruth Venturini, 20, in custody today on charges of attempting to poison her nine-year-old twins, Janice and John. Authorities said Mrs. Venturini tried to take the lives of the twins and her own with poison tablets. All three were reported recovering.

WOMAN'S DEATH PUZZLES POLICE

Vital Organs of Body Washed Ashore To Be Studied.

OAK BLUFFS, Mass.—(AP)—In an effort definitely to determine the cause of death of Mrs. Randolph B. Schackelford, once prominent Philadelphia matron whose body was washed ashore here, police today took the woman's vital organs to Boston for examination.

Police said they were not certain as to the cause of death because there was no water in the lungs and bruises on the body "apparently" had been inflicted after death.

THE TUTTS— By Crawford Young

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Leo Carrillo is so serious about this governorship business that he's talking in campaign slogans and stump phrases while waiting for the voice of the pee-pul to gather strength. . . . Says Leo: "The script of state government needs rewriting, the cast needs changing . . . and the direction. . . . We must balance the human budget . . . The politicians may say I do not know politics—but I have made my career by knowing people, what would make them laugh and cry, what they think about, what they need. . . . Why should I care about politics? . . . We must preserve California's first and almost forgotten asset; her romance and tradition. . . ."

Leo would be "so honored" by a nomination that he would cheerfully give up the money he makes in pictures, which is as much in two weeks as he would get in a year as governor—$10,000 . . . But he'd have to be coaxed. . . .

In this new photo-minded world you can gauge an actor's importance by the number of flash bulbs exploded for him at a large party . . . If it's a small party the news camera crowd will gang up on any kind of celebrity. . . . At a big blow-out they'll take a shot or two of the featured players but it's the stars that use up the bulbs . . . At the Eddie Cantor festival—hearts, flowers and Jack Benny—I counted five flashes on Deanna Durbin to every one on the very cute Dixie Dunbar, sitting nearby with Joe E. Brown, jr. . . . And at Mrs. Borzage's anniversary fling for Frank (who'd been directing stars for 20 yaers) the photos made plenty of heat lightning all the time until Joan Crawford walked in with Franchot Tone—and then it was like the brilliant breaking of an electrical storm. . . .

* * *

Now I know why Bob Burns rates tops with a group of youngsters out in Bel-Air. . . . It happened on Halloween, when the neighborhood boys ganged together and pursued the innocent old custom of ringing doorbells, demanding "treats." . . . They got Bob Burns to the door, he heard the demands solemnly, invited them inside, served drinks (soft) and played them a bazooka solo. . . .

HEART ATTACK PROVES FATAL

Eli Zoller, 75, Chatfield Farmer, To Be Buried Thursday.

BUCYRUS—Eli Zoller, 75, native Chatfield township farmer, died Monday at his home following a heart attack. Survivors are two sisters, Miss Lucinda Zoller, and Mrs. Samuel Clady of Shelby, and a borther, William of Bucyrus. He was a member of the Nazareth Lutheran church of Chatfield.

Services will be held at the home at 1 p. m., Thursday and at the Nazareth church at 2 p. m., in charge of Rev. Paul Dornbier. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

MONDAY STUDY GROUP HEARS TALK ON ISLAND

Mrs. Louis J. Ott, Jr., Discusses Norfolk When Mrs. Howard Wenning Entertains Club at Her Home.

HISTORIC Norfolk Island In the South Seas" was the subject chosen by Mrs. Louis J. Ott, jr., for her talk last night before members of the Monday Study club. Mrs. Howard Wenning, 500 Forest Hill, was hostess with Mrs. Carlton Fernyak as associate.

Mrs. Ott told about the beginning of her correspondence with Mrs. Mildred Campbell and her subsequent knowledge of the islands. She had replied to an advertisement in a library journal requesting books and magazines for the residents of the island. She wrote to Mrs. Campbell and from her letters has learned much about the island.

Although the weather is ideal there is little to do at Norfolk. Aside from the usual outdoor sports and a movie once each week the residents have no entertainment other than reading. Their only connecting with the outside world is the steamer which stops once each month.

The island was discovered by Capt. Cook and Lieut Bly and was at one time a convict island. Some of its residents are descendants of the survivors of the mutineers from the famous ship captained by Bly which was the source of the recent popular book and movie "Mutiny on the Bounty."

Mrs. Nicholas White, 410 Chevy Chase road, will be hostess for the next meeting which will be a book review. The date has been advanced from Nov. 29 to Nov. 22. Mrs. Lowell Bourns is associate hostess.

Country Day Organizes P.T.A.

At the organizational meeting of the Parents and Teachers association of the Country Day school last night John Graham was elected president of the group. Joy Herbert is vice president, Mrs. Ephriam Brown, secretary; and Mrs. M. D. Harnly, treasurer.

Mrs Irving Clark, Mrs. Carlton Fenyak, and Wesley Carr were elected council members. Mrs. I. W. Basinger and Mrs. David F. Boals spoke on the state, national, and local Parent Teacher associations. Mrs. Vivian Haynes, director of the Country Day school, told of the gifts which have been given the school and the work of cataloguing the library.

Guild Members Entertain Mrs. Heaton At Shower

Miss Vivian Miller, Blanche street, was hostess last night at a short business meeting of the Young Women's Missionary guild of St. John's Evangelical church. The organization decided to aid at once a needy family reported.

Following the meeting a shower was given for Mrs. Clifford Heaton, the former Irene Aaron. Tea towels were hemmed for her and a social evening was spent. The next meeting will be Dec. 20 with the place to be announced later.

Ruth Class of St. Luke's Hears Poetic Readings

Miss Mary Bellstein, 75 West First street, was hostess last night to the Daughters of Ruth class of the St. Luke's Lutheran church. Miss Bertha Harshman led the devotions for the group of 9 members and two guests.

Mrs. Harry Krumm was in charge of the business session. The guest speaker was Mrs. Helen Loomis Linham who quoted favorite poems. The next meeting will be a Christmas party at the church Dec. 20.

Girl Changes Mind About Marriage

By VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR MISS LEE: I am a girl of 16 and cannot go out nights. I fell in love with 'Strong Arm,' who is 19. I feel that we love each other enough to go out together, but my mother insists that I don't go.

"I have not said anything to my mother about 'Strong Arm,' but my friends have and she knows all about him. He insists that I take him in and introduce him to my parents, but I always have to say no.

" 'Strong Arm' moved away, but he comes out to see me and I have to slide out and get in trouble with my parents. He says that if I keep on saying no he'll have to forget me—which I don't want.

"I am a senior in high school and I have to think about graduation, but he is in my mind all the time and I am not studying as I should. I think that if I really could go with him that I could study better. I don't know how to tell my parents

TOWN HEART."

I think you are too optimistic about being able to study better if you were allowed to go out with this boy, Town Heart. You would I fear, find yourself mooning over your books thinking about last night and what he said and how he looked, etc., and your studies would not be much better prepared. As it is the business of youth to study and get an education, it is too bad they can't be made so that they won't have love affairs at that period in their lives—but they are not.

I do agree with you, however, that you should be allowed to have certain nights when you can "date," nights that will not interfere with your school work, and I think the boy is right in wanting to meet your parents. He should do that, and it might make a difference if your mother knew him, especially if you were reasonable and didn't want to go out on school nights and got home in good time. I hope your mother reads this and realizes that her little girl whom she hopes to keep safe from love affairs, is sneaking out to see a boy. That is, I hope she sees it if she realizes that she is to blame, and will let down the bars a bit and be nice to the boy. It would solve your problem.

You will have to be a "strong character" in the matter of your studies, dear, whether your mother lets you have dates or not. I knew a girl once who went to college, but failed her first year and was asked not to come back, just because she fell in love and let her emotions rule her judgment. She failed in her studies and violated school rules, and pretty nearly broke her mother's heart. She married the boy, but I often wonder if she wishes she had "ruled her spirit" better and waited a bit for the love of her life.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, November 17.

WHILE BUSINESS may be fairly good, according to the ruling aspects, yet this day may be one of confusion and unsettlement of a rather unexpected nature. It would be wise to postpone new undertakings, and to have definite agreements with feminine friends. Be alert to intrigue and misrepresentations with these, and thus avoid future unhappy consequences.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of change and confusion, with women figuring in duplicity or misrepresentation. Enter into new business with precaution and sound acumen.

A child born on this day may have a changeable and adventurous career. It may have some conspicuous adventures and be subject to intrigues and duplicity.

It is always best to cook tapioca that requires no soaking in a double boiler to prevent burning. If you have no double boiler set dish in which it is cooking in a large pan of boiling water.

PYRAMIDING MISTAKES

IT IS amazing to see how pretty fair players sometimes will pyramid one mistake on top of another. One of them may come, for instance, by discarding on the opening trick a card which later might set up as a thirteener, instead of one which cannot possibly be of value. Then on a later trick, at the lead of a singleton from dummy toward a guarded king, the declarer may neglect to read that the failure of the first defender to put on the ace makes it perfectly clear that he does not hold it.

Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

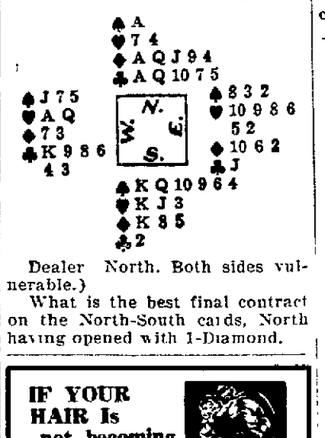

Five diamonds constituted the final contract reached at all tables on this deal in a duplicate tournament. Some were set, some made five and at one table six was made.

The successful declarer, instead of discarding a spade on the club A, when the club K was led, discarded a heart, and when he led his singleton heart from dummy and East did not cover with the A, refused to put up his king. On the second round of hearts later in the play, he used his K to discard the spade 10, and allowed one round of spades, setting up a thirteener. Played in this way, he lost one trick to the heart A.

Where the heart K was played on the second trick, West led his diamond 2, and declarer then needed his three diamonds in dummy to ruff losing hearts.

Black, Brown Lead as Best Harmonizers

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

OF COURSE, that old saying that "clothes make the man"—or the woman— is not really true. Yet there's no denying that clothes really do help a great deal in increasing a girl's attractiveness. That is, they help if they are selected tastefully, with an eye to line and color.

It is usually the girl with a limited income who encounters clothes problems. And that, I think, is because she does not know how to budget her income, how to select her frocks and accessories wisely. Color harmony is most important to this type of girl. If, for instance, she has a perfect love of a green dress in her wardrobe, she must curb that impulse to purchase a green hat, shoes and bag to go with it. For she definitely won't be able to wear her green hat, shoes and accessories with her coronation red frock or her dress of royal blue.

And her restricted income certainly would not permit her to purchase shoes, hats and accessories to harmonize with the shades of each of the frocks in her closet.

The best idea for the girl who cannot expend much money on her clothing is to purchase accessories that will harmonize with practically all of the new winter dress shades, and black and brown are the safest selections. The girl whose wardrobe consists chiefly of brown dresses or of dresses with which brown harmonizes pleasingly, should select brown accessories.

And the lass whose dresses are mostly black, blues, reds and the like should choose black accessories. In this way, she will preserve the perfect color balance of her entire ensemble, and will add greatly to her attractiveness and smartness of appearance. And what's more, she will be making that tiny income of hers go a long way!

Black Always Smart.

Another good idea for the lass who has to make every penny of her income count is to include a good number of black dresses in her wardrobe. If she can afford merely a few dresses for the season, then black is the color for her, for black is always smart. And it is just as appropriate for informal evening wear as it is for afternoon or street wear.

There's another thing about black that commends it to the girl who must budget her funds, and that is that one black dress can be made to seem like several different dresses. A bright scarf or a simple tailored collar makes it the perfect frock for business or street wear. A soft, lacy collar or a frilly jabot dresses it up, makes it perfect for afternoon or early evening wear. And a couple of rhinestone clips makes it an entirely different dress again.

Budget your money wisely, and select your frocks, hats, shoes and accessories tastefully, if your income is limited. For, as I said before, while clothes don't make the woman, they often help the woman to make her man!

Eyelashes.

Marriage Meddlers

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

AS KATIE'S voice sounded from below stairs, Mrs. Ticer glanced in hurried and harried fashion around my room, as if seeking a way of escape. Then realizing from Katie's nearing voice that my faithful but tempestuous housekeeper would be in my room before she could leave it, she squared her shoulders in militant fashion, and I knew that she was ready for any altercation that Katie might start.

"Missis Graham!" Katie shilled again, and then I heard Dicky's voice.

"She's in her room, lying down with a headache. But you can see her. I'm sure she's awake. Mrs Ticer just went up."

"O-h! So-o!" Katie's voice ran the gamut from surprise to lofty contempt. "Vell den I tink I kin see her all right. Eef she alone mit headache, I no disturb her, but eef dot—vat?"

The last word came so explosively that I guessed Dicky had gripped her arm with an imperative demand that she lower her voice. But it was too late. Mrs Ticer had heard and understood, and, in Dicky's parlance, her 'hackles were rising.'

"Did you hear her?" she demanded. "She was starting to call me a name when Mr Graham stopped her. I'll not stand that from anybody."

"Dear Mrs Ticer," I pleaded. "Please don't be offended. I'll attend to Katie."

"If only I didn't have to see her," she said irresolutely. "I can't keep quiet if I see and hear her."

"You don't have to meet her," I said with a sudden inspiration. With a swift movemnt, I rushed to the door and turned the key noiselessly in the lock, then beckoned Mrs Ticer across the room to my closet door.

"You know there's a door into the guest room on the other side of this," I whispered. "Go in there and wait until you hear Katie in here. When you hear me say, 'I hope you've had a good rest,' you will know that the door into the hall is shut and that I am standing between it and Katie. I'll leave this door a little ajar, and you leave the other one the same way. They are not opposite each other, so Katie cannot see the other one. Go out into the hall very carefully, so that she does not hear you, go down the kitchen stairs and then home."

Mrs. Ticer Leaves.

"And there won't be any grass growing under my feet on the way," she whispered back with a grin as she vanished into the closet. I turned back to call out as Katie knocked upon my door, reiterating her call of "Missis Graham."

"Wait, Katie, I'm coming," I called, and crossing the room, unlocked and threw open the door.

"Oh my Missis Graham!" she exclaimed, fairly throwing herself upon me with an impetuous embrace. Then she straightened herself and looked around the room in puzzled fashion, while I closed the opened door and, with a wary remembrance of my militant mother-in-law, again turned the key in the lock.

Katie Militant.

"Vere dot Ticer vomans?" she demanded. "Meester Graham he say she here bodering you."

I trembled for fear Mrs Ticer, hearing this, might burst back into the room again, but I answered quickly and with apparent nonchalance.

"Oh she went away quite a while ago," I said. "I hope you've had a good rest, Katie."

"Oh so-so," she replied. "Eef you mean rest mit nodings to do, I had good enuff rest. But me, I no kin rest, tinking of dot Ticer vowans turning mine keetchen all oopside down und inside oudt. Me, I'll bet ven I go down, I find nodings vere I always keep eet. I have to feex eet all ofer again."

Her tone was lugubrious, and I hoped that Mrs. Ticer was safely on her way out of hearing. But my hope was dashed the next minute when I heard my mother-in-law's voice exclaiming in astonishment:

"Why, Mrs Ticer!" she said. "You thoroughly cleaned that guest room yesterday. What are you doing in there this morning?"

Household Hints

Menu Hint

Clear Beef Broth
Crackers or Croutons
Roast Fresh Ham Cider Ice
Mashed Potatoes Squash
Apple-Celery-Cranberry Salad
Fruit Crackers Cheese
Nuts Coffee

This menu might well serve as a Thanksgiving dinner, although it is a little early to be thinking of that festive meal. The beef broth may be made the day before of a shank of beef. Cover it with cold water, after washing; add one onion, a bay leaf, stalk or outer leaves of celery, and a carrot. Cook very slowly for about three hours. Strain through a sieve, and set aside to cool. When cold remove the fat that has solidified on top, reheat, season and serve.

Today's Recipes

CINNAMON CIDER ICE.—Take one-half cup red cinnamon candies, one-half cup sugar, one cup water, one-fourth cup lemon juice, three cups cider. Boil candies, sugar and water together for five minutes, cool, add lemon juice and cider. Pour into freezing container of modern ice cream freezer, only filling two-thirds full. Cover, then pack mixture of three parts crushed ice and one of rock salt around freezing container, and turn crank slowly but steadily. When it becomes too stiff to turn, remove cover carefully, take out dasher and pack evenly with spoon. Cover with waxed paper and replace lid. Draw off excess water, repack with ice and salt, using same proportions as before. Cover freezer and allow to harden one hour before serving. Serves 10 to 12 persons.

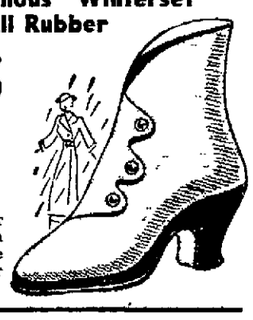

In order to have brown flour always on hand for gravy, try this. Spread a pint of flour upon a large tin plate, place in oven and every few minutes stir; leave until the desired brown shade. Then drop in a covered glass jar.

A tablespoon of vinegar added to each pint of water in which beets are boiled will preserve their color.

To Get the Best Cough Remedy, Mix It at Home

Quicker Relief. Big Saving. So Easy. No Cooking.

This famous recipe is used by millions of housewives, because there is no other way to obtain such a dependable, effective remedy for coughs that start from colds. It's so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its effect on throat and bronchial membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

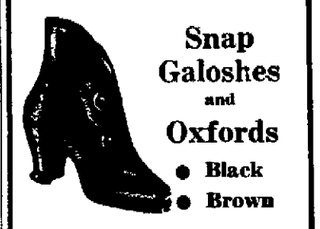

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of cough remedy, far superior to anything you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving you double-quick relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

N.C.O. Race Over; Galion Is Champ

Marion's Victory Over Mt. Vernon Cinched Title For Orangemen, Re-check Shows.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor

AN apology is due Galion high school. In a story in yesterday's News-Journal about Shelby's unexpected victory over Galion, it was stated that the defeat made it possible for Marion to tie the Orangemen by winning over Bucyrus this week-end.

A re-check of the N. C. O. conference standings reveals an error. Galion, although defeated by the Whippets, is the champion, and no matter what occurs over there in Bucyrus, Friday night, Coach Bob Corry's men cannot be denied an outright claim to the title.

Galion was assured undisputed possession of the titular honors last Friday, when Marion knocked Mt. Vernon out of the race with a 20 to 0 victory.

This department sincerely regrets the error which denied the school credit for the success it had rightfully achieved. It was unintentional, we assure you.

* * * * *

Mansfield Prestige Aided By West.

LITTLE did the Tygers realize when they tackled Akron West in the opening game of the season that they were meeting a champion.

They were aware of the fact that West was the Akron defending title-holder, but they did not know that the Cowboys again packed championship strength.

However, after coming through with a close 19 to 14 victory, the Mansfield athletes admitted that the Cowboys had the stuff to repeat. The Tygers were less surprised than the Cowboys' own followers when they completed their city series last week with an unmarred record.

* * * * *

Sandusky Stages Remarkable Comeback.

CRITICISM of Mansfield's defeat by Sandusky is no longer general. The Blue Streaks have won their last six games to stage one of the most remarkable comebacks in Ohio scholastic circles this year.

* * * * *

Shelby's victory over Galion must be written in N. C. O. conference records as one of the most startling upsets of all-time. The Whippets were not even given an outside chance to tumble the Galionites, but they did. And, in winning, Shelby merely added a few more gray hairs to the expert's heads.

* * * * *

At the start of the current season, Texas University, coached by Dana X. Bible, was selected as the probable winner five straight week-ends by this department, but lost. Then came the Texan's game with the undefeated Baylor outfit. This department selected Baylor, but Texas won. Who wouldn't act a little queer after something like this happens?

Nash, Miller All-Ohio Candidates.

STADIUM field visitors have witnessed their share of brilliant football players this fall. Notable among the backfield stars they have seen in action were Bobby Nash and Lloyd Miller of Akron West and Kenmore, respectively. Both deserve All-Ohio mention.

* * * * *

Expert observers of the formal debut of John Montague in big league golf found a number of glaring weaknesses in the game of the "mystery man." In the first place, Montague is prone to slice badly off the first tee if, at the top of his swing, some admirer at his elbow hollers: "Whack it, Monty, old boy!"

Gayle Talbot of the Associated Press also says that his approach shots are inclined to wander off the line if there are over 3,000 persons between him and the flag, all of them shouting: "Down in front before I bust you one!"

His putting, too, is nothing to rave about when he can't see the hole, and he is inclined to quit like a dog and concede a hole when his ball gets stolen off the green.

With these exceptions, Montague is quite a golfer, we understand.

East's Bowl Eleven Will Have to Learn New Set of ABC's If California Is Foe

By HENRY McLEMORE

PORTLAND, Ore. —(U.P.)— The eastern team that comes to the coast for the Rose Bowl game this season, will have to learn its ABC's all over again.

Not the old-fashioned ABC's, but the University of California ABC's which are something altogether different. For at Berkeley, where Coach Stub Allison has put together one of the strongest football teams in a decade, A is for the first varsity, B for the second, and C for the third.

The team that meets California in the Rose Bowl will see all three of them, and it is not going to have an easy time figuring out which is the toughest. I saw the California first, second, and third teams in action Saturday against Oregon, and the tip-off on what a healthy baby that C group is, is that it more than held its own with an Oregon varsity that was good enough a week earlier to trounce Washington State.

The C varsity played the final quarter and yielded nothing. The B varsity wah Coach Allison's choice for duty in the preceding period, and all it could do was take the ball on its own 20-yard line and blaze 80 yards up the field for a touchdown.

This brings us, in backward fashion, to the California Varsity—the A group that starter the ball game and played the first half. Working on a field that was ankle deep in slime the Bears hammered across three touchdowns.

This California team Saturday, was far and away the most impressive eleven I have seen all year. It didn't have a flaw, and it went about the business of winning the ball game with the poise of those old Rockne teams.

There isn't a weak spot on the line. The backfield, Saturday at least, was tremendously impressive. Vic Botarri took the field hailed as the star ball carrier, and he played like one, yet he was not quite as efficient as Sam Chapman. Chapman, a rangy fellow, is a power runner with a fine burst of speed, and he can pass and kick with the best.

There will be no rout in the Rose Bowl this year. That is, if California is the Pacific representative; and the Bears appear to be a cinch to get the bid. To beat them the eastern team will have to master a new set of ABC's—a set that averages 188 in weight, and is plenty tough.

THE Optimists crept within two games of first place held by the Liederkranz club in matches rolled in the Club league at the Meder alleys last night.

Rolling a high 2664, the Optimists took two dicisions from the Kiwanis club, while the Mansfield Savings Bank swept its series with the Liederkranz.

Shepherd of the Kiwanians set the individual scoring pace with a 641, which included games of 216, 231 and 194.

In the other matches, the Eagles took two games from the Public Parks, led by Kozik's 613; Unger rolled a 611 to lead the Gas Meters to a pair of tilts over the Tracy & Avery, the Schoolmasters won two decisions from the Baku Grotto and the Managers' club swept its series with the American Legion.

SCENE OF HOCKEY OPENER WEDNESDAY

Inside view of Cleveland's "Arena," hockey emporium.

The first hockey game of the 1937-38 season will be staged in Cleveland's new million-dollar Arena, pictured above, Wednesday at 8:30 p. m. The game will pit Cleveland's Barons against the New York Rangers in an exhibition match. The new home of the Cleveland team will accommodate 9,000 spectators.

UNBEATEN LIST REDUCED

NEW YORK — (AP) — The fortunes of war, abetted by the rigors of modern football schedule-making, had conspired to reduce the list of major undefeated teams to 12 today without affecting the unbeaten status of the main contenders for the mythical national championship.

Pitt and Fordham in the East, Alabama in the South and California in the far west still were riding high with the end of an exciting and unpredictable season in sight. With all due respect to the rest of the undefeated field, it seems that if a generally recognized national title-holder is to come at all it will have to come from among these four.

Pitt and Fordham stand out in the field of seven unbeaten eastern teams because of their representative schedules. None of the others—Yale, Dartmouth, Villanova, Holy Cross or Lafayette—has been called upon to tackle such opposition as Pitt and Fordham have overpowered. The same must be said for Santa Clara, Colorado and Montana, whose perfect records entitle them to give California at least a mild argument in the far west. Alabama, although its opposition has been almost entirely southesn, stands alone as the south's lone unbeaten major eleven.

Kicking Duel In Prospect At Ann Arbor

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Michigan football, enjoying a mild renaissance this season, is back on the famed "a punt, a pass and a prayer" basis.

The chief factor in the success of the Wolverine team that will be sent against Ohio State Saturday at Ann Arbor, has been Norm Purucker, a 170-pound junior halfback with a deadly toe.

Michigan dropped the first three contests on its schedule and appeared headed for another disastrous campaign when Head Coach Harry Kipke began using Purucker.

Purucker's long, towering punts in the last four games consistently have driven the Michigan opponents deep into their own territory and either provided the breaks that led to Wolverine scores or protected slim advantages the Kipkemen had built up.

The value of Purucker's kicking was never more apparent than last Saturday when Michigan scored a second period touchdown against Pennsylvania and then depended upon their kicking star to protect it.

Should Coach Francis A. Schmidt of Ohio decide to play Howard Wedebrook against the Wolverines one of the greatest kicking duels of the year likely would take place.

Despite his great punting Wedebrook has seen only spasmodic service and it was probable that either Jim Miller or Mike Kabealo would be called upon in an effort to match Purucker's long kicks.

The Bucks were sent through a long offensive drill yesterday.

Reiterates Stand Against Late Games

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Ohio's high school athletic board reiterated today its stand against post-season football games and wrote into its code three rules setting up penalties for violations.

The board stated its stand tersely in these words:

1. No member school of the Ohio Athletic association may play football after Nov. 27. The penalty for violating this rule is suspension.

2. Any senior who plays after Nov. 27 becomes ineligible for all interscholastic athletics the balance of the 1937-38 school year.

3. All other pupils who violate this rule will be ineligible for football in 1938-39.

DICK NARDI SHARES LEAD

Ties Gopher Star For Scoring Leadership in Big Ten.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Dick Nardi, speedy halfback who is winding up his collegiate career in a blaze of glory for Ohio State's Buckeye's, holds a half-share of Big Ten individual gridiron scoring honors.

Nardi, by scoring two touchdowns against Illinois, boosted his season total in conference games to 24 points and a tie with Rudy Gmitro, Minnesota back, who did not score against Northwestern.

Mid-State Title At Stake Friday

Madison and Mt. Gilead to Battle for Championship Fifth Time In as Many Years—Both Teams Undefeated.

THE championship of the Mid-State league will be at stake on the last day of the season for the fifth straight time this week. In other words, the title has never in the history of the circuit been definitely decided until the last day.

And, strange as it may seem, the same two schools—Mansfield Madison and Mt. Gilead will be the principals in the title-deciding game.

The Rams have won the championship every year except in 1935, and the outcome of next Friday's all-important tussle at Mt. Gilead is very much a toss-up.

Neither Defeated.

Both Madison and Mt. Gilead are undefeated. The Rams have won every game, while the Indians have only a scoreless tie with Marion to blemish their record.

The game Friday will find both clubs at their full strength. The The lineups of the two clubs were weakened at various times during the season by injuries, but all of the cripples will be ready for action Friday, the rival camps announced today.

Coach Carl Hopkins has built one of the strongest elevens in Mt. Gilead history this year. It packs power, speed and deception, and has been extended in only a couple of games.

Coach Al Fendrick of Madison has also constructed a strong outfit, which has kept its goal line uncrossed in all but two games.

Expect Record Crowd.

One of the largest crowds ever to witness a Mid-State league game is expected for the Friday afternoon tussle by Mt. Gilead athletic authorities.

Heiser Named Coach Of Y Grapple Team

A wrestling team to represent the Y. M. C. A. in intercity competition will be formed this year, R. B. Chapman, Y secretaary, announced today.

Vern Heiser, a former Ohio State mat captain, has been selected to coach the team, Chapman said. Heiser will meet with prospective members of the team at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday. Those desiring to try out for the team are urged to attend the meeting. Matches have been tentatively booked with Toledo and Columbus.

Warner Rolls New C Record

Chandler, Lead-Off Man, Scores 244 Game.

Warner, lead-off man for the Rodney Chandlers, established a new season single game record in the Commercial C league at the Meder alleys last night when he came through with a 244. The former mark of 240 was set by Metzger of the Levering Dairys.

The Barnes & Schmid outfit compiled the high team game of 928 and top total of 251.8

REDS SHOW NICE PROFIT

Cellar Team Cleans Up $30,000 During 1937 Campaign.

CINCINNATI — (U.P.)—Although the Cincinnati Reds finished last in the National league race during the 1937 baseball season, the club showed a profit of $30,000 for the campaign, it was revealed here today. The announcement was made following a meeting of the board of directors.

In 1936 when the Reds finished in fifth place the club profited $100,000.

Dutch Clark to Retire; He's 'Slowing Up'

NEW YORK — (AP) — Earl Harry Clark, Colorado's "Flying Dutchman" of the professional gridirons, wants to retire from active competition after this season because, he insists, he's "slowing up."

Nine other clubs in the National league will be glad to get this news, though they will believe it's true when they actually see Clark on the bench next year. They not only doubt the declining powers of the Detroit club's versatile playing coach but they still rate him, by long odds, the greatest all-around performer in pro football.

HART WINS OVER RYAN

Steele Wins Other Tourney Bout on Grapple Show In Armory Ring.

Frankie Hart, "the flying Dutchman," and Bud Steele won theid initial decisions in the light-heavyweight elimination tournament by taking top honors in the weekly Quality club's wrestling presentation at the Armory last night.

Hart, making his first appearance on the Mansfield grapple front in two years, gave the fans a thrill when he defeated "Bad Boy" Ryan in straight falls in one of the 90-minute two-best-out-of-three-fall matches.

Proves "Iron Man"

Steele, Plymouth youth, was the "Iron man" on last night's card. The star appeared in the 20-minute curtain raiser and came back in one of the feature attractions.

The "Dutch Adonis" from Holland made short work of Ryan to advance in the tourney in which the winner will receive a purse and a crack at the world's title.

Jos Wheeler, Cleveland, who last week lost his match on a foul, duplicated his feat last night.

Hart was tops throughout his match. He tossed "Bad Boy" with a series of body slams and a smother to take the first fall in 11 minutes. Coming back strong, the Dutchman pinned Ryan to the canvas with a body split in 12 minutes.

Steele, substituting for George Wagner, New York artist, who was unable to appear because of an auto accideht, floored Wheeler with the "double arm bar," to win the first fall in seven minutes.

Wheeler opened up when hostilities were resumed and his rough tactics forced Referee Clarence Miller of Newark, to award the fall and match to Steele in 5 minutes.

Mansfielder In Draw

A Mansfield boy made his debut before home fans last night. He was Bud Hamilton who battled Steele to a draw in the 20-minute opened. Hamilton showed promise but lacked the experience to take Steele.—By Paul White.

Sets Opening For December

The City Class A league basketball season will open early in December, it was decided last night at a meeting of managers at the Y. M. C. A. All games will again be played at Mansfield high school, but no definite date has been set.

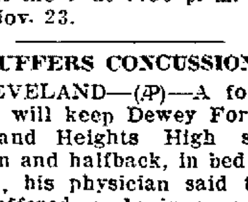

Three teams entered last night. They are Westinghouse, Ira D. Ling Canzols and Elks. One or two other clubs are expected to enter at another meeting to be held at the Y at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday, Nov. 23.

Cripples Back In Lineup

WASHINGTON—The Washington Redskins, hampered by injuries throughout the season, will be at full strength when they meet the Cleveland Rams, at Cleveland Sunday.

Injuries have hampered the Redskins since the start of the 1937 campaign, with one or another star player being on the bench. Cliff Battles, All-Pro halfback in 1936 and leading ground gainer in the league so far this season, was in the hospital for the first two games the Redskins played this year, then George Smith, reserve center, was forced out of competition in the second game against the Chicago Cardinals, with a dislocated shoulder. Dixie Howell, triple threat back, and former All-American at Alabama U., could not round into tip-top shape until the Brooklyn game due to a bad knee. Max Krause, ace blocking back, was out of two games with a fractured foot and Erny Pinckert laid idle as a result of a broken hand.

WEINTRAUB TO ORIOLES

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Outfielder Phil Weintraub has been sent from the New York Giants of the National league to the Baltimore Orioles of the International league in part payment for Pitcher Harold (Hy) Vandenberg, it was announced today.

NO. 1 ROOTER FOUND

Eleanor's Happy With Her "Robert Taylor"

"I'm no prize," coyly admits Billy Rose, half-pint impresario (above), chatting gayly with Eleanor Holm after their arrival in San Francisco. "Well," asks the swimming star, "what has Robert Taylor got that you haven't got?" The couple were interviewed on their reported forthcoming marriage when Rose, who must be divorced by Fannie Brice, and Eleanor, who must be divorced by Art Jarrett, secure their freedom.

THEATER

IF SOME of the ribbing and tomfoolery that goes on in the film capital could be transferred to the screen, it would be funnier than the long-studied gags that are used. At a cafe the other night Jack Benny borrowed a fiddle and started to play. Ribbers passed the word around and in a moment the exodus started. Alice Faye, Mae Sunday, Tony Martin and others of the regular patrons started to leave the room, and before the number was finished the room was empty except for Benny and Marcel Lamaze. Benny never batted an eye but, still playing strolled over to Lamaze's table and finished the fiddle solo for him. At the finish of it, Lamaze dug down into his pocket and handed the radio-screen star a dollar.

* * *

Will Rogers Revival.

Another revival of a Will Rogers early success will be the attraction at the Madison Wednesday and Thursday when "Judge Priest" is shown there. This is the film version of Irvin S. Cobb's famous Kentucky jurist and shows Rogers with a twinkle in his eye and a gavel in his hand, presiding over the affairs of the people of a small community. A popular cast supports the late humorist, including Rochelle Hudson, Tom Brown, Anita Louise, Stepin Fetchit and David Landau. The late Henry B. Walthall also has a part in it.

Musical Highlights.

No better music has ever come to the screen than that heard in "The Firefly," in which Jeannette MacDonald and Allan Jones sing the lovely melodies of the Rudolf Friml operetta. The "Giannina Mia" number, which is used as a theme song fitting in with the action of the story, has the same appeal as "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life," while "Sympathy," as sung by the two stars is one to be remembered. The rollocking clop-clop and lilting piccolo notes in "The Donkey's Serenade" is a musical highlight of the musical romance. The picture remains at the Ohio through Wednesday.

* * *

Arliss Turns Smuggler.

George Arliss, English character player who has a warm place in the hearts of American film followers despite the fact that he has deserted the American studios to work exclusively in English films, turns smuggler in his latest picture, "Dr. Syn." A preacher by day and a smuggler by night, he is as honest a rascal as ever rolled a hogshead of rum past the nose of the excisemen. Smuggling then was an honorable business, practiced by honorable men. The picture is on the Majestic program along with "A Girl With Ideas."

* * *

American Tragedy.

"They Gave Him a Gun" isn't just a story of the World war, but of the destiny that pursued three persons after the war. One is a circus barker who takes the war as it comes and leaves it when it's finished; the other is a sensitive boy who faints at his first killing, but remembers the lessons so well that he practices them when he returns to civilian life; the third is a war nurse who mothered both of the men. Spencer Tracy, Franchot Tone and Gladys George play the leading roles in this American tragedy at the Ritz. A newspaper story, "Exclusive" rounds out the bill.

"INVESTORS ATTENTION"
Do you get jittery when stocks and bonds weaken? Here is an investment that will stand the acid test for years to come. Located right in our 100% retail district, under lease to large chain store corporation, returning 9½% net on investment after taxes and insurance deductions. With large chains clammoring for leases and offering bonuses in order to secure leases. With nothing for sale in this district, with valuations increasing every year, no investment could be more secure. Listen! how many commercial properties in our 100% retail district have changed ownership within the past 25 years? That's sufficient proof of stability and safety. You owe it to yourself to investigate. Inquiries confidential.

BUYING SUPPORT ENTERS MARKET AFTER TUMBLE

Initial Losses of 1 to 3 Points Reduced Near 2nd Hour; Dealings Quiet.

NEW YORK— (AP) —A little buying support entered the stock market today after a tumble by leading issues at the opening.

While initial losses of 1 to 3 points were reduced near the second hour, dealings turned exceptionally quiet.

Steels were under further pressure in reflection of the ninth consecutive decline in mill operations. Motors were also in supply as labor problems again confronted this industry along with restricted production.

Wall Street, after overnight study of the president's message, apparently decided it was neither particularly bullish or bearish, although some were inclined to stress its conciliatory attitude toward business.

Bonds pointed lower, as did commodities. Securities were weak in London, Amsterdam and Paris.

Among items scanned in boardrooms before the start of trading were.

The Texas railroad commission, confronted with a sizable increase in crude petroleum production throughout the country during the week ended Nov 13, indicated it would enforce a shut-down in the East Texas field on the forthcoming four Sundays. The suspensions would result in a cut of about 2,000,000 barrels in the state's total output for the month.

Based on figures on the first few railroads to report, last week's freight loadings were estimated to have suffered a substantial decline, with the aggregate believed below the 700,000 mark.

SORE THROAT
GARGLES REACH ABOUT ⅓

THOXINE SOOTHES ALL THE WAY DOWN... THEN ACTS FROM WITHIN. Get relief from Sore Throat and Coughs due to colds—and get it quick. With the very first swallow, THOXINE, the internal throat medicine, soothes soreness, helps loosen phlegm and ease hard swallowing. Wonderfully effective because, unlike gargles that reach only about the "upper ⅓" of irritation, THOXINE also acts deep in the throat and through the system as well. Pure, reliable—best for children, too. 100% satisfaction or druggist returns your money. Get THOXINE today! Accept no substitute. 35c, 60¢, $1.

FARM BILL TIES UP CONGRESS

Roosevelt's Proposals Bogged Down as Committee Fails To Reach Agreement.

ing message yesterday instead of waiting a day, house leaders also found themselves killing time. They wanted to recess until Thursday, but Republican objections forced a session today.

While waiting for the farm bill, house chieftains sought to pry loose the president's other major proposal — the wage-hour bill — which had been locked in the rules committee since summer.

Circulates Petition.

Despairing of getting approval from the rules committee, Chairman Norton (D - N. J.) of the labor committee, started circulating a petition to bring the bill directly to the house floor.

The petition must be signed by 218 members, but it can not become effective until December 13. That would leave only a week of the special session for debate and for ironing out any differences between the house bill and the one passed by the senate in July.

The fourth measure on the president's program—regional planning—was locked in the senate agriculture committee back of the farm bill The house committee has not completed hearings.

Despite the president's obvious attempt in his message to hold congress to the four-point program, the delay on those measures gave impetus to demands for legislation to spur business activity—particularly tax revision.

A house ways and means subcommittee was meeting daily to work out modifications in the corporate surplus and other business taxes, but Chairman Vinson (D.-Ky.) was pessimistic over the prospect of framing legislation time for a vote at this session.

Almost unanimous sentiment in both houses for modification or repeal of the corporate surplus tax produced dozens of proposals for changes in the law

The house subcommittee agreed to exempt corporations whose profits do not exceed $5,000 a year.

Throughout the comment on the president's message yesterday ran general approval for his proposal to revice corporate taxes to aid small business.

Republican Chairman John Hamilton said last night:

'Republicans in and out of congress can be hopeful now that their repeated warnings have forced President Roosevelt at last to face realities.

"He finally promises us tax revision "

Comment on the other portions of the president's message ran along party lines.

Committee Works On Tax Revision

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A house tax subcommittee, spurred by a presidential suggestion that "inequitable burdens" of small business men be lightened, attempted to work out today a formula for reducing the undistributed profits tax against corporations with incomes from $5,000 to $50,000

Members were in agreement on the objective. They were undecided how to reach it.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ky) said they were working on a method of allowing the corporations tax exemption for percentages of their income The percentages would be smaller as the amount of income increased.

Already the committee has agreed to exempt from the levy corporations whose profits do not exceed $5,000 a year, thereby cutting down federal revenues by some $10,000,000.

That would bring to more than $169,000,000 the aggregate which would be lost to the treasury by tax revisions under consideration or tentatively agreed on by the subcommittee.

Repeal of the capital stocks and excess profits taxes would cost some $140,000,000. Permitting capital losses to be carried over from one year to offset capital gains in another would reduce federal income by $19,000,000.

KIDNAPERS FLEE NEW YORK JAIL

three keepers, the superintendent said, and the convicts went into the prison yards.

Steal Guard's Car.

There they encountered Edward Hayes, a keeper who was reporting for work. They forced Hayes to his automobile, took his keys and bound him.

Unable to start the automobile, Paddock said, they liberated Hayes momentarily to permit him to start the car, and then sped away with Hayes in the back seat to Syracuse, five miles away.

There they released Hayes unharmed. Paddock quoted Hayes as saying the three transferred to another car but he was unable to describe the automobile.

Paddock said none of the prisoners in the cell block where the convicts escaped gave out an alarm.

Prison officials were apprised of the escape only after Corbett freed himself and notified them.

State police immediately issued an alarm over the teletype system and troopers and local authorities were scouring Syracuse and vicinity in an effort to apprehend the trio.

Oley, Geary and Crowley were among eight convicted of the O'Connell kidnaping in federal court in Binghamton, N. Y., on Aug. 12 after a trial which lasted almost 11 weeks.

In addition to the prison terms, each was fined $10,000.

The sentences were to be served at Alcatraz prison, but appeals and other legal moves delayed their removal.

Others convicted at the time were· John McGlone, New York City; Charles Harrigan, New York City; George Garguillo, New York City, and Thomas Dugan, New York City, all of whom received 77 year sentences and fined $10,000 each and Manning Strewl of Albany, sentenced to 58 years and given a $10,000 fine.

Iowa Village Has Jail Always Left Unlocked, Open

RUSSELL, Ia.—(INS)—This little community in southern Iowa probably is the only town in the United States that boasts of having a jail that is never locked.

The jail, an iron cage behind the town hall, has not been used for so many years that the lock became lost and "city fathers" have neglected to buy a new one

When not used for council meetings, the town hall houses an ancient fire pump, an old fire ladder and a chemical fire truck which until recently pulled the pumper.

Russell is known throughout Iowa as the ideal small town, because of its economic solvency, lack of criminal problems, and its schools and churches

SEES BUSINESS SLUMP END IN 'NEAR FUTURE'

Ayres Says Current Decline Not Beginning of Another Depression Period.

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—The present business decline is not the beginning of a new depression, but the sixth serious set-back in the nation's recovery phase, Col. Leonard P. Ayres, statistician and vice-president of the Cleveland Trust company, said in his monthly business review.

The present set-back's cause is that "business men have again lost confidence in the prospects for profits," the statistician said.

"Trade and industry prosper only when employment is general and pay rolls are large," Ayres said. "And these conditions exist only when the prospects for profits are bright.'"

Favorable For Upturn.

Ayres cited conditions which should be favorable to an upturn in the near future.

"Materials for the construction of a real prosperity are in abundance," he said. "We have a great volume of money in our banks that is unemployed or partly employed. There is an excess of idle workers seeking jobs. There are still great unfilled shortages of goods resulting from the depression years."

Ayres saw "much need" for new construction, but found found building costs too high "to justify most contemplated projects."

"Railroads have huge programs of rehabilitation but they are suspended because the recent wage increases are costing far more than the new freight advances can bring in," he said.

Utilities are eager to spend huge sums on needed improvements and expansions, but they doubt if they would be permitted to earn adequate returns to justify the increased investments."

He saw "not much use" in attempting to judge "whether this downturn probably will be long and serious, or brief and moderate."

"The outcome depends on actions and policies that will be decided upon in Washington," he said.

Trail of Dinosaur Located In Mine To Be Preserved

CEDAREDGE, Colo.—(UP)—A 30-ton section of rock will be removed from a coal mine near here to show that an early inhabitant of this state—an iguanodon dinosaur—could step off 15 feet at a stride.

The rock contains four footprints of the dinosaur. Dr. Barnum Brown, leader of an American Museum of Natural History expedition, said the tracks are part of a trail. The right and left footprints are 15 feet and 2 inches apart. The three-toed footprints are 34 inches long and 34 inches across the toes.

To remove the footprints of the giant creature which roamed this area when it was a dense tropical forest of the cretaceous age, 80,000,000 years ago, it has been necessary to widen 1,000 feet of the coal mine and build a special mine car. The footprints, Brown said, were implanted in a prehistoric swamp that eventually became a seam of coal.

Brown estimated that the dinosaur iguanodon must have stood 30 to 35 feet in height.

After it is removed from the mine, the fossil slab will be reduced to a six-inch thick section and shipped to the New York museum for display.

DEFIES CO-EDS

Student at O. S. U. Takes Up Culinary Art.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Albert E. Coate, Trenton, O., a student at Ohio State university, decided he wanted to learn cooking and nothing—not even the tittering of co-eds—can stop him.

Coate is serious about his chosen profession. A transfer student from Miami university, he tried his hand first at journalism, then architecture, but decided the culinary art was his main forte.

Here's one of his own recipe's which he offers to prove his superiority as a cook over his female rivals:

Fill a baked crust with ice cream. Top with sliced or crushed fruit. Add more ice cream, cover with meringue and place over a 500-degree flame for about a half a minute. Serve immediately.

OFF 30 DAYS

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Eldon G. Copeland, R. D. 6, Kenton, Hardin county maintenance engineer for the state highway department, was placed under a 30-day suspension by State Highway Director John Jaster, jr.

Jaster's office did not disclose detailed reasons for the suspension. The state civil service commission's records said the suspension was for "discipline."

Players Open Season Tonight With "Libel"

(News-Journal Photo.)

The curtain will go up at 8:15 tonight in Senior High school auditorium on "Libel," the first presentation of the Community Players this season. Although the entire action takes place in a courtroom, it will be different from courtroom scenes familiar to American theatergoers, for it is strictly English, even to the curled wig for the judge and the funny quques for the barristers and solicitors. (The wigs, funny as they appear, will be strictly authentic, too, according to the research director of the Cleveland Playhouse.) In the picture are Russel Tither, seated, who plays the judge in the libel trial; Mrs. V. H. Lodde has the role of the wife, and Ruhland Isaly is the barrister for the newspaper.

COUNTY LOSES

Denied New Trial in 4-Year-Old Damage Suit.

The four-year-old damage suit in which the estate of the late Mrs. Nora Elizabeth Olds of Lexington, sought $10,000 from the Richland county commissioners for injuries suffered by her in 1933, apparently was closed today.

The commissioners motion for a new trial, filed after a jury returned a $1,500 verdict against them several weeks ago, was overruled by the court and the verdict was ordered upheld.

The suit was carried to the court of appeals and the state supreme court after a common pleas court jury decided for the county at the first trial. Mrs. Olds' husband, Harry Olds, continued the action following her death two years ago.

Injuries suffered by Mrs. Olds when the automobile she was driving left the road and turned over at the entrance of her home formed the basis for the suit.

GET RECOGNITION AT OHIO STATE

4 From Vicinity Receive Extra Credit for High School Work.

Four students from Mansfield and vicinity are among 109 at Ohio State university to receive special recognition from the university for scholastic work while still attending high school.

These students, because of grades of B, or better in high school and placement tests, have been given from five to 20 hours advanced credit in romance languages, which will count toward their college degrees.

Among the students receiving the credit are Carl Quick of Mansfield, Helen Grundestein of Ashland, Ann Thomberry of Marengo, and Frederick Snyder of Millersburg.

RECEIPTS DROP

October Court Revenue $700 Under Previous Month.

Municipal court receipts totaling $1,798.81 for October fell more than $700 below the revenues collected for September, the monthly report of callections prepared by Miss Isabel Gerstmeyer, deputy clerk, showed today.

Part of the loss was attributed to the decreased revenues in the civil branch over September's revenues that set an all-time record in that department.

From the total receipts, the city's general fund will be increased by $1,448.42, while $350.39 will be distributed to the state, county and law library. The city's share was derived from $1,151 in fines, costs and forfeitures in criminal cases and $297 collected as costs in civil cases.

ELECT FRIDAY

Mansfield Realtors Name New Officers for 1938.

John C. Friday was elected president of the Mansfield Real Estate board for the coming year at the annual election of officers held yesterday in conjunction with the regular Monday meeting of the group. He succeeds W. C. Mansfield.

Other officers chosen were: W. T. Gross, vice president, J. H. Mayberry, secretary-treasurer; W. A. Shaull, J. R. Balliett and George C. Farrow, appraisal committee, and C. N. Blackman, J. O. Byers, George C. Kyle, J. C. Friday and J. H. Mayberry, trustees.

Mansfield, the retiring president, was elected to the board of governors of the state, to represent the local association in various state matters.

LOSES LICENSE

Driver's Operator's Permit Revoked on Intoxication Charge.

Arraigned in municipal court yesterday on charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, C. F. Schonauer, 40, Bellville R. D. 2, pleaded guilty and was fined $75 and costs and his driving rights were revoked for one year.

Schonauer was arrested Saturday night by Deputy Sheriff J. R. Hetler at Bellville after his auto rammed into the rear of a parked car.

Speaker at the meeting will be Prof. Gilbert H. Barnes of Ohio Wesleyan university faculty.

3 SENT TO JAIL

Shelby Youths Convicted of Stealing 32 Chickens.

Fines and jail sentences were imposed on three Shelby youths who pleaded guilty to petit larceny charges when arraigned in municipal court before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch yesterday.

Quentin Pitcher, 19, and Robert Bushey, 18, were fined $25 and costs and sentenced to 10 days in jail. The alleged ringleader and third member of the trio, Alvin Guthrie, 21, was fined $30 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail.

The trio was taken into custody by Sheriff E. P. Long after they had sold 32 chickens to a downtown merchant. Long said the chickens, valued at $24, were stolen from Fred Kilgore, four miles south of Bellville, Saturday night.

CITY BUILDING ACTIVITY SPURTS

Permits Issued for 5 Projects at Total Cost of $8,000.

Despite the fact that winter weather is practically here, November building activity spurted today with the issuance of five permits at the city building with total construction valued at $8,025.

The permits went to Edward Getz for a two-story brick dwelling to be constructed at the estimated cost of $6,000 at 141 Wolf street and a $200 garage; to J. W. Kennedy for the construction of a $600 garage at the rear of 73 Penn avenue; Dexter Hamblin for a $125 garage at 26 Williams street, and Ernest Bigler, 278 West Fifth street for alterations to his home amounting to $1,100.

FIX THAT COLD!

And Fix It Right—Depend on No Mere Half-way Measures!

A cold neglected may be a cold regretted!

Many a "slight" cold has ended in flu and pneumonia.

Forego "cure-alls." A cold calls for a cold treatment and not a preparation good for all kinds of ailments.

A cold also calls for internal treatment, for a cold is an internal infection.

Your Treatment!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets) are what you want for a cold. First, they are a cold tablet, made expressly for the treatment of colds and nothing else.

First, they open the bowels.

Second, they check the infection in the system.

Third, they relieve the headache and fever.

These four effects make a real cold treatment and in Bromo Quinine you get them all in the form of a single tablet.

The Stitch in Time!

Beat a cold to the punch. As soon as you feel any symptoms, start taking Bromo Quinine tablets at once. Two tablets every four hours will soon break up the cold.

Bromo Quinine tablets may be taken with confidence. They have been on the market for over 40 years and are the world's largest-selling cold tablets. That proves their trustworthiness.

All drug stores sell Grove's Bromo Quinine tablets, a few cents a box. These famous tablets now come sugar-coated as well as plain.

Ask for—and insist upon getting—Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets). Any attempt to sell you anything else may be viewed with suspicion.

WASTAGE HUGE

Oil Technicians Make Strides In Gasoline Process.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Three oil technicians predicted more than 9,000,000,000 gallons of high grade gasoline—nearly half the present total annual gasoline consumption—could be converted annually from materials formerly wasted or put to inferior uses.

Gustav. Egloff, J. C. Morrell and E F. Nelson, all of Universal Oil Products company, Chicago, outlined the process in a paper before the American Petroleum Institute's division of production.

The gasoline, they stated, could be obtained by polymerizing gases released in "cracking" crude oil to produce motor fuel. The polymerization process, they said, was almost the reverse of cracking, converting gases into liquid hydrocarbons of greater value, whereas cracking involves the conversion of heavier hydrocarbons into lighter ones.

REPORTS GAIN IN EMPLOYMENT

National Board As Jobless List Cut 134,000 in September.

According to the National Industrial Conference board, the nation's unemployed in September were reduced by 134,000 to an estimated total of 6,066,000. Total employment in all fields of private enterprise and permanent government agencies aggregated 47,075,000, an increase of 183,000 over the August total.

Non-agricultural workers in September were placed at 35,312,000, up 72,000 over the previous month. Decreases in employment: 183,000 in construction, 29,000 in transportation and 21,000 in manufacturing Increases 200,000 in trade, distribution and finance, 111,000 in agriculture, 81,000 in service industries and 20,000 in mining.

INSURANCE TO SUIT THE NEEDS, THAT'S AIM OF STANTON AGENCY

Early in his insurance experience, Ralph Stanton reasoned that the best interests of all insurance buyers is served by offering them counsel on the plans of companies best suiting their need. This counsel could be given faithfully only if he had wide experience and knowledge of the policies and practices of many companies

To act as an agent for one company prejudices the information and counsel, tending to cause the purchase of insurance that may not exactly fill the need, he decided.

"Recently one man asked for a specific kind of insurance," Mr. Stanton said. "He stated that he had not seen any policy which suited him. Through an experienced study of the case and knowledge of companies best suited for that particular risk, the insurance was placed in a brief time."

Mansfield has appreciatively responded to this experienced insurance counsel and brokerage service and as a result the Stanton agency recently moved into new and larger offices in the Walpark building From one man the organization has grown to six men, and is now known as Ralph C. Stanton and Associates.

Every type of an insurance problem, large or small, receives the same thorough and courteous attention of the Stanton agency.

Bigler Exchange Becomes Agency For Underwood

Arrangements have been completed whereby T. G Bigler of Bigler's Adding Machine and Typewriter Exchange, 282 Rowland avenue, will act as sales representative for the Underwood Elliott Fisher Co, one of the world's largest manufacturers of typewriters.

The Underwood typewriter is well known throughout the nation and has been selected as standard equipment by many local firms.

The Underwood line consists of the standard, noiseless standard, standard electric and portable typewriters, in addition to Sundstrand adding machines in hand and electric models

A demonstration of any of these machines can be arranged by calling either the Bigler exchange, Canal 2667 or the Mansfield office of Underwood in the Richland Trust building, Adam 3169.

Service for Underwood typewriters and Sundstrand adding machines will be in charge of Walter Peters who has been trained to care for all types of machines manufactured by the company. Mr. Bigler will continue to give maintenance and repair service on all other types of machines.

USING SHELLAC

Shellac is a valuable aid to archaeologists in the preparation of fossilized specimens for shipment to museums. Following the disinterment of the fossil, the entire skeleton is coated freely with shellac. Thin and absorbent rice paper is then applied to the surface of the bones, followed by another coat of shellac. The whole forms a remarkably tough protective shell.

REDUCE TEMPERATURE

A new vogue in roof colors advocates the painting or covering of roofs in white. A white roof deflects the sun's rays, reducing inside temperature several degrees.

BIG YEAR SEEN

Production of Autos in 1938 Expected to Set Record.

In point of volume, 1937 is expected to be the best year since 1929 for the automobile industry. Production of cars and trucks is estimated at 5,100,000 for the full year, as compared with 4,616,274 in 1936. While the average unit value of $580 is about $23 over 1936, it is still $25 under the 1930 figure. The higher wage scales and material costs raised operating expenses about 20 per cent this year, but car prices were not advanced until August, or after the heavy selling season Hence profit margins were narrowed and aggregate 1937 earnings may be some 20 per cent under 1936.

The outlook for 1938 is somewhat mixed. Labor difficulties still threaten but to a lesser extent than this year. Existing CIO contracts which will expire during the coming year may not be renewed under the same terms, and present points of differences may not be settled over the conference table. An organization drive against independents also looms.

The average worker in the automobile factory now draws $1,604 annual pay, compared with $1,405 in 1936. Comparative data provided by the commerce department reveal that the auto worker's present wage is higher than in other industries

A factor obscuring the 1938 outlook is the effect of the recent security market slump. It is entirely possible that it might have a dampening effect on new car buying if it is extended into 1938.

INDUSTRIAL JOBS DIMINISHING CCC

Resignations Greatest in 4-Year History of Corps.

Civilian Conservation Corps officials report that private employment in industry has so improved in recent months that resignations from the CCC are greater now than at any time in the four-year history of the corps.

A sharp drop in the CCC's waiting list is also reported by officials.

During the first eight months of this year, a total of 98,167 men out of 315,899 enrolled in CCC camps, made application for honorable discharge to accept private employment, records of the corps show

The CCC will still be kept at its 300,000 enrollment quota, however, government officials said.

NEED ATTENTION

To prepare knotty boards for painting, a method of priming adapted by painters is recommended: aluminum bronze mixed with either varnish or boiled linseed oil—two pounds to the gallon. Before the application of this prime coating, it is advisable to wipe off all pitch streaks with turpentine, which not only improves the anchorage but also lessens the bleeding of the knots.

AHOY GIRLS!

AUTOS RUN ON NATURAL GAS?

DAYTON —(AP)— Perfection of an adapter, which assertedly would supplant the carburetor in motor vehicle engines using natural gas as a cheap and more powerful substitute for gasoline, was claimed here by P. N Jarboe, a San Antonio, Texas, inventor.

The adapter, Jarboe stated, weighs 18 pounds and feeds natural gas into the motor after changing it from a highly compressed liquid into its original gaseous state, just as gasoline vaporizes before exploding in the engine.

Orr Typewriter Firm Continues Steady Expansion

Continuing its steady expansion, the J. F. Orr Typewriter company, 53½ North Main street, has opened a branch store at 22 West Main street in Shelby. Five persons, including four salesmen, have been added to the company's staff.

Agent for Royal typewriters in Richland and Huron counties, Mr. Orr is also the exclusive distributor in this territory for Shaw-Walker steel furniture and filing equipment.

The campany also handles a full line of Master-Craft visible binders, strap binders, chain binders, bank forms, Victor adding machines, and other office equipment.

The Royals, made by the world's largest company devoted exclusively to the manufacture of typewriters, are available in either standard typewriters or portables.

"Royals are made of rigorously tested materials and protected by exclusive improvements—improvements which are not obtainable in any other typewriter," Mr. Orr says.

CITY ANSWERS DISMISSAL SUIT

Solicitor Files Demurrer to Action Brought of Former Street Employe.

City Solicitor H. H. Schettler filed a demurrer in common pleas court, today, in behalf of three city officials denying charges contained in an action brought by Clarence Stillwagon, former city employe.

Stillwagon filed a suit early in October seeking to win back a city job under civil service from which he was removed more than three years ago.

In his petition, he contended that he was demoted without notice from pumper at the city waterworks to the street department despite his civil service rating. He also asks for $1,831 which he claims is due him as the difference in salary between the two jobs for the three-year period.

The plaintiff was dismissed from the street department a day after he filed the suit.

Service-safety Director Philip Wolfe, City Auditor Paul Kelley and City Treasurer Dean A. Eckert are named defendants in the action.

The demurrer to Stillwagon's petition states that the action is illegal because it was filed more than two years after the alleged infraction occurred in September, 1934, and that the petition does not bring out facts sufficient to warrant action.

The demurrer further contends that Stillwagon was given employment by the city during most of the time since he was demoted in 1934 after he served a term in the Columbus workhouse for assault and battery.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

Millions Are Fighting That Tired Feeling

Some people are always tired, no matter how much sleep they get. Often they are just suffering from constipation. For early fatigue, mental dullness, sleeplessness, sour stomach and its resultant bad breath, mental depression, the aggravation of most skin blemishes, can all be caused by it.

So keep regular. And if you need to assist Nature, use Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. This gentle laxative can help bring relief. Extremely important, too, is the mild stimulation it gives the flow of bile from the liver, without the discomfort of drastic, irritating drugs. That's why millions are sold yearly. All druggists, 15¢, 30¢, 60¢.

Don't Neglect a Cold

Musterole is NOT just a salve. It's a "counter-irritant" containing good old-fashioned cold remedies—oil of mustard, menthol, camphor and other valuable ingredients.

That's why it gets such fine results—better than the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Musterole penetrates, stimulates, warms and soothes, helpful in drawing out local congestion and pain. Used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists'. In three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong.

THE STATE vs. ELNA JEPSON

CHAPTER XVI

"First," Roger commanded, "you must make this room as nearly as possible as if only two people had been in it. Remove Holly's third glass. On second thought, remove all the food—it's not the kind of food women eat together during a social call. Holly, remember has entertained you at her house, and you have attended a party with her. You were more than acquaintances, less than close friends — you haven't been seen togther often enough; let us say casual friends. Cut out the telephone and the private number business, if possible. Say you met her on the street today and she suggested coming up for a chat since I was busy. You told her which buzzer to sound by number—perhaps that will even get you out of the false name."

"Mightn't I have offered her one of our two glasses of wine?"

"No!" Roger snapped. "No fingerprints. Wash up. Wash my fingerprints off the poker. Your's won't matter because the poker belongs to you. Think—think as hard as you can how the room ought to look if two women alone had been in it. Whatever you do, don't touch the body. Then call the police and report an accident. Be as quick as you can. The blood on your dress won't matter. You would naturally rush to help your friend when she slipped and fell. I think you'll make it." Roger's voice was again almost triumphan. "Remember, you're a smart girl!" His lips touched hers briefly.

"You think of everything," Elna said wistfully.

"That's my business," Roger said without complacency. "Never thought I'd try it on myself—and you. But I'll give you one tip. Try to pretend that you're acting in a play, that it has nothing to do with real people. Try to think and talk and act as you imagine they would do. Put up a mental wall against what really happened. You may have to make some unforeseen decisions when the police come. Answer as if all that I have outlined to you were true—think your answer that way. But think ahead. If they do ask questions, think what those questions and answers might lead to. Volunteer nothing, but don't act as if you were holding anything back. Got all that?"

Elna nodded dumbly. It shocked her that even in this room of horror she longed to have his arms around her for a moment, strong, close, comforting, longed to have him hold her instead of firing all these terse directions at her.

"There is no room in the minds of either of us just now for anything but strategy," he said, as if he guessed her thought. "But given luck and good management, there will be plenty of room later. Remember, if we win now, the one obstacle is gone and the world is ours!"

Poor Holly—lying dead on the floor—and only an "obstacle" removed! But that was just the way Roger had warned her not to think, if she were to succeed for him. And she must succeed. From the thought of Roger, in a "triangle" case, his career shattered, on trial for the murder of Holly for her sake—her imagination shuddered away from the half-formed picture.

"You have given me great responsibility," she said gravely, her head lifted.

"Yes, I've given you great responsibility for both of us," he said, looking down at her. That's because, even if all this hadn't happened here and to you, I'd still think you're the one girl who may carry it through. We're friends, and you never let a friend down, do you?"

Roger was peering carefully down the corridor. "I can go now. Good luck!"

He was gone.

* * *

Elna stared blankly around the quiet room. There were so many things to do skillfully, so many lies to tell so warily. Roger had left her. She must remember every direction. The presence of Holly, dead, alone with her, did not frighten her.

She set the percolator plug in the wall socket. If she found she needed coffee, it might as well be ready. No, the percolator, she remembered, was empty. She ran to the kitchen to add coffee and water before re-attaching the cord.

She jerked herself back to Roger's orders for speed and completeness. What would a woman, paying a friendly call, be doing just here. What would cause her to stumble back?

The little table against which Elna had leaned her hand, standing against death—that was it! Holly was reaching forward for something, lost her footing on the polished floor, and caught her heel in the rug. That followed facts, at least closely enough. Elna stared at the little table, wondering just what her friend would be reaching for. Glacing about the room, she chose a small vase containing a single fragrant rose. Roger had not touched the vase, she was sure, but taking no chances, she wiped it, then clasped it again with her own hand. Holly had been stepping forward to examine the rose.

The poker still lay on the carpet where Roger had dropped it as he joined her where she knelt beside the body. Elna wiped the handle with her handkerchief. Her own fingerprints would not matter, Roger had said.

* * *

What else might Roger have touched? The dishes, of course, he had mentioned. Like a flashlight globe popping in her brain, she remembered the armchair, seized her handkerchief again and mopped the wood surrounding the upholstering of Roger's special chair.

Roger had lent her many of his books, popular and technical. There was a lot about trajectory of bloodspurts. If she wiped any of the blood away, these experts would find it out.

Tears were streaming down her cheeks as she removed the dishes. They had meant happiness a few hours ago. Mechanically she washed and dried them, returning each to its proper place. Then, her dish towel hanging over her arm, she went into the living room, skirted the carpet, and looked for Holly's glass where it had been flung backward on the table. It had fallen sidewise. Elna's first thought was horror because, in falling, it had broken. Hurry! Hurry! Yet not a trace of broken glass must be left.

She swept the larger portions aside with her hand. Then sheer panic seized her. Other fragments of glass gleamed up at her from the blood on the table. With a sudden, violent motion she wiped the blood-clotted table with her dishcloth, sweeping the broken glass with it.

Carefully assured that no scrap was left, Elna ran to the kitchen again. She washed every fragment before throwing it into the garbage pail. If she had tried to throw the glass away, it might have been found. There were blood spots on the dishcloth. She washed it thoroughly. Then she noticed a few spots of blood on her dress. She scrubbed these away with a damp cloth. Everything was done.

Then, quite without feeling, she knew that she could not go through with it. "I can't do anything more, Roger—I'm all in—I can't" she whispered.

A commonplace sound roused her as she leaned, a limp white figure against the kitchen wall. The percolator was furiously bubbling. Elna grasped a cup and staggered into the living room.

"I've got to!" she said.

The coffee was strong and bitter. She drank two cups, and the strong stimulant brought renewed strength. Then, with steady fingers, she detached the percolator, took her cup to the kitchen, hastily rinsed and replaced it on its cupboard hook.

* * *

Her eyes glanced at the kitchen clock. Perhaps, she thought, almost smiling, the habit of watching experiments had given her that trick of checking the time. Roger had left exactly twenty minutes ago. It was time to call the police. Her hand was already on the telephone when she caught a glimpse of her face in the Venetian wall mirror. Blotched, tragic, frightened was the face before her. That would never do.

She rushed into the bathroom and flung salts into the basin. She plunged her face deep, splashed her hands and arms. She opened her precious bottle of eau de Cologne, extravagantly poured it into her cupped hands, then dashed it across her face, her neck, her tousled hair. The rush of her comb through the damp mass brought it to its accustomed smoothness. The stinging of the cologne against her skin was like snow. A dash of powder across her face made it seem human, normal, before her gaze.

Certainly no woman whose friend had just died on the carpet would remember the directions for dialing the police. Elna tried her utmost to imitate that woman.

"Operator," she called, "get me police—emergency — quick — it's serious!" Her voice had trembled. For the moment she had actually been that woman calling for help. "Yes—oh yes—this is Hillcrest apartments, apartment twelve."

"Can you tell me the nature of the emergency?" The voice was impersonal as all telephone operators' voices are.

"It is—death. Have them hurry!" The quaver in Elna's voice was genuine. "Thank you," she gasped.

* * *

She did not know that the operator had exceeded her duties in not referring her to the police headquarters without question. She did not know that Nora of the switchboard was "walking out" with Inspector Jewell of the homicide bureau, and had wept over the last two murders, which had remained unsolved despite hard work.

Nora glanced toward the night supervisor. The coast was clear. She plugged in the private number of the homicide bureau. Every one there knew her voice, for she called Jake Jewell whenever she had a chance, and they took turns answering the telephone.

"Homicide bureau, Jewell speaking." Nora smiled a bit at the "telephone voice" of Jewell on duty.

"Nora," she announced herself. 'Listen, boy, get all your crew—fingerprints, soft-soapers, every one—over to Hillcrest apartments, number twelve. Girl just called up, not drunk, said there was death in her apartment. She sounded agitated. No name. Send one of your men here and we'll dig it up for you—but it will be phony. Otherwise she'd have said it first thing. People do. Send one of your men over to the apartment house when you get it. Go to it, kid. I may be wrong, but I got my hunch you'll make up for those last two cases you missed."

Elna sank into a chair to wait. She must marshal her thoughts. She leaned forward, warming her cold hands against the dying fire, and with a sudden nervous gesture seized the poker and roused the coals, then added several fresh blocks.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1937.

If you are looking for signs of a depression you'll not find them at any of the big football games.

According to reports from the auto shows, this is the year when cars reach the point of leaving nothing to be improved upon.

If Jesse James were alive now he'd probably be engaged in some nice safe job like running a slot machine racket or operating a bookie joint.

Quick Corrective Steps Needed.

THERE is a grave danger, pointed out by many responsible economists, that the country may sink into another depression—unless corrective steps are quickly taken. The same experts are generally agreed that two of the oustanding causes of the recent drop in business production and the collapse in security values are the capital gains tax and the undistributed profits tax.

The capital gains tax, by heavily penalizing persons who sell securities at a profit, dams up the normal flow of private capital into productive industry. A man who makes such an investment must take all the risks of loss—but if he makes a profit instead, the tax deprives him of a large part of it. Under this condition, who can blame capital for staying in "hiding"?

The undistributed profits tax prevents corporations from using funds to build up necessary reserves against bad times, for expanding inventories, for rehabilitating plant and equipment, etc. To quote a National Industrial Conference Board survey, "The tax penalizes thrift and introduces tendencies contrary to conservative financial practice . . . The tax involves the application of a new and unsubstantiated theory of taxation. It is uneconomic because of its effects on corporate policies and practices and not because of the burdens imposed. The tax is deficient as a regulatory device . . . The law assumes a degree of uniformity among corporations that does not exist, and the tax is inequitable primarily because of this assumed uniformity."

Two bills have been introduced in Congress by Representative Emanuel Celler, Democrat of New York, to correct these taxes. In support of these bills is the practically united sentiment of economists, financial journalists, industrial leaders, and many men high in the government service.

Prompt passage of these two bills should be the first move toward stopping another depression and reviving the recovery movement.

Reformatory Parolees Held for Murder.

ANOTHER reverberation of Ohio's lax parole system comes from Huntington, W. Va., where two paroled inmates of the Mansfield reformatory are held on a murder charge following the death of an aged man who was the victim of an abduction and extortion plot. Third of the trio facing a murder charge is an ex-convict.

Occurrences such as this reflect seriously on Ohio's lenient parole methods and indicate that a policy of severity of punishment must supplant the present policy of releasing dangerous characters in order to provide space for other law violators.

The cost of crime already bears heavily upon taxpayers, but until some better method of dealing with criminals is found, their imprisonment or extermination appears to be the only way in which the law-abiding majority of people can be given the protection to which they are entitled under the law.

It is a sad commentary on present-day conditions to recognize that more prison space is badly needed in Ohio—and that a considerable percentage of today's children are being reared in an environment that tends to make criminals—not only elsewhere in Ohio but RIGHT HERE IN MANSFIELD as well!

Looking Back From Eighty.

HOWEVER you look at it, eighty is a "ripe old age" and few there are whose circumspect ancestry and own abstemious habits of living make it possible to pass the four-score mark in earthly existence.

Even less common is it for a man of eighty to retain the physical strength and mental alertness required in going about the same daily tasks that have engaged his attention through more than a half century.

But that a man at that age should indulge his liking for the outdoors to the extent of following a long-time custom of devoting his birthday anniversary to a hunting trip reaches almost to the unbelievable.

Charles F. Ackerman, president of the Mansfield Savings Trust National bank, is remarkable for a number of things—including the fact that he secured his education after leaving school—but few things in his career are more noteworthy than that he is on a hunting trip today—his eightieth birthday anniversary.

An Insult to American Decency.

HOWEVER tolerant many people may be as to the rights of others to make fools of themselves, the current episode of Billy Rose and Eleanor Holm impresses as being the most flagrant flouting of rules of decent behavior that has ever been experienced in this country.

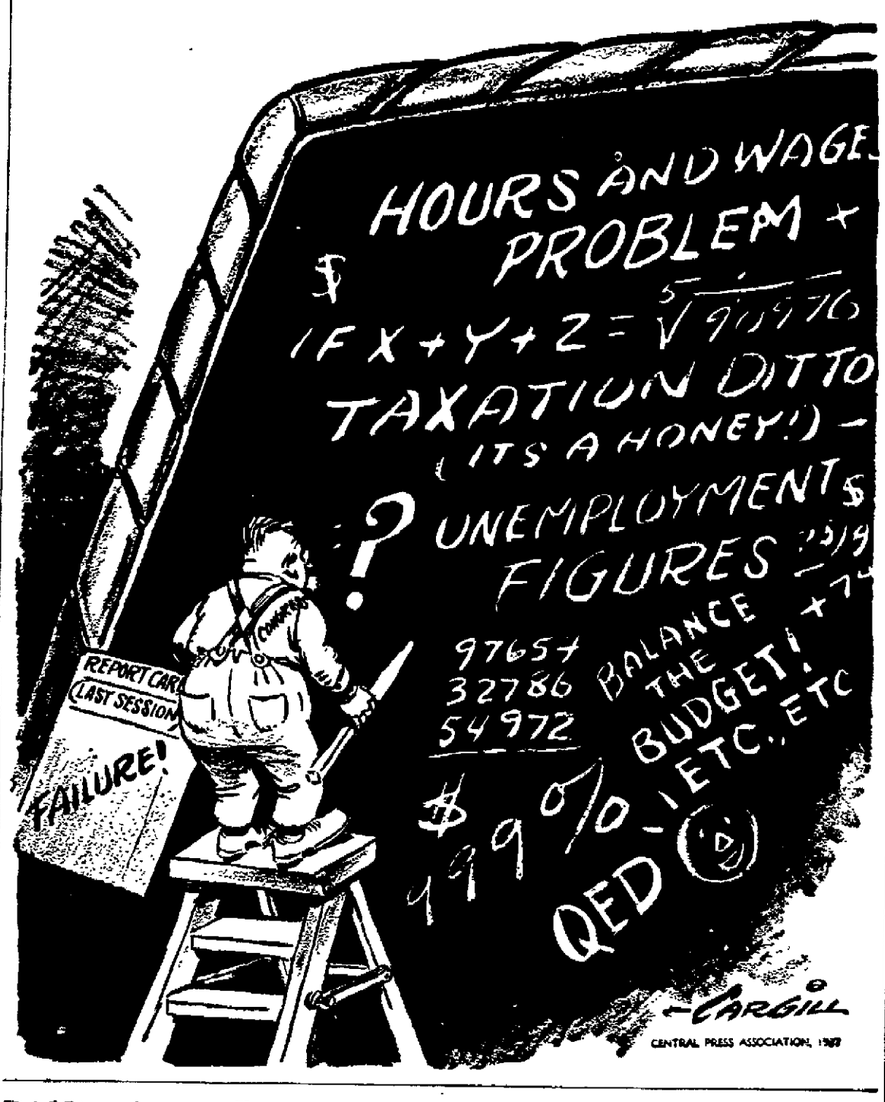

That these two people should publicly announce their intention of being married as soon as their present marital ties are dissolved by court actions not only occasions a feeling of disgust but also serves as an insult to the integrity of courts into which such actions would be brought.

Whatever the attitude of Billy Rose, super-showman, and Eleanor Holm, the champagne-drinking swimming star, may be toward marriage, the fact remains that a very large percentage of Americans cling to the notion that marriage is more than legalization of transient mating and that the family is an essential unit in civilized society.

If it is the serious intent of Billy Rose and Eleanor Holm to be married as soon as they can divorce their respective mates they should be made to understand, in no uncertain terms, that their plans are out of accord with American ideas of decency—nor should any court become a party to such a brazen arrangement.

Pity the poor Duke, who gets those seventy trunks all packed up and then finds there's no place to go.

PAGE EINSTEIN!

Difficult to Cut Federal Spending Program

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — Anyone who believes that the plan to shift the recovery job from government to private industry will be completed without much jarring and grating might be advised to take a closer look at some of the means by which it is to be shifted.

Take the case of roads. Secretary Morgenthau, in outlining plans for budget balancing before the Academy of Political Sciences, suggested road building as one of the first outlays to be curtailed. And practically nobody doubted that Morgenthau was delivering a message straight from headquarters.

He explained that in pre-depression times the annual federal contribution to road building was under $100,000,000 a year. This year estimated expenditures are $253,000,000. This item has been even higher in recent years. Morgenthau says it should be cut to its old level which means knocking off $150,000,000 or more.

• • •

What Would Happen?

OFFHAND it would seem that this involved only the comment: "Well, we have enough good roads for a while anyway." But it must be remembered that building roads requires contractors, and contractors build up large organizations and buy lots of machinery. They employ many men.

Now they are told that the administration may reduce, perhaps by half, the federal spending on highways. That would mean fewer contract jobs.

Would these contractors be idle? Would their foremen, engineers, straw-bosses, machinery, gravel-truckers, grader-operators and unskilled shovel men be idle also?

If the transition from government recovery spending to private recovery spending should work out perfectly, these people would not be idle. But the period of transition may be weeks, months, a year.

Both President Roosevelt and Chairman Douglas of the securities and exchange commission have urged public utilities to cut loose their long-overdue expansion and improvement programs. Douglas estimates the utilities could spend a billion dollars a year for the next five years in modernization and expansion.

• • •

The Transition Period.

EVEN if the spending of that billion a year should begin at once—which is doubtful for many reasons—it would not at once give jobs to all the road men and machinery. Road-scrapers can not be converted suddenly into hole-diggers for telephone poles.

Moreover, men out in the field with an interest in federal spending already are beginning to put the heat on congressmen. The pinching out of PWA spending for dams, sewers and school houses has started the cry.

Won't it be fun to be a congressman during the next few months trying on the one hand to keep expenditures down so the budget will balance, and at the same time trying to pacify the Bill Phippses, the Steve Yardleys and other dam builders and road builders—not to mention the farmers, storekeepers, dentists and plumbers who would feel the pinch of the transition from the federal feed bag to the private feed bag?

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Whipping Posts for Worthless Parents.

"NO NATION RAISES MORE CHILDREN FIT FOR JAILS AND PENITENTIARIES THAN AMERICA."

Fighting words—those! A terrific wallop at the egotism of a nation which boasts of its love for children—of the liberty and luxuries given its younger generation. But the man who says them knows whereof he speaks—and has scanty patience with the Peevish Papas and Mad Mamas who'll be incensed thereby.

Years ago, out of his pity for neglected and misguided youth, Father Flanagan started a unique institution in Omaha—gave it his own name—"Father Flanagan's Boys' Home." And thousands of youngsters, redeemed from the gutter and gun gang, have reason to bless him for it.

Things are run strictly in Father Flanagan's Home. Punishments are meted out which raise Cain with the kiss-n'-coddle-'em tribe and those theorists who believe in "unfettered self-expression." Yes, this is certainly no place for sissies of any age...yet one never heard a complaint from the inmates. And for the best of all reasons—the youngsters make their own rules, boss their own incorporated town, dispense their own sentences—which, as mentioned before, are plenty tough if necessary.

But severe punishment is rarely necessary in Father Flanagan's Home. Be decent yourself...stick on the job...give the youngsters unlimited faith, affection and the benefit of a good example, and neither you nor the cop will have to worry about your youngster's record. This is Father Flanagan's philosophy. He doesn't believe that youngsters are "born devils," nor does he join that chorus of Sour Pusses who indiscriminately condemn all juvenile expression.

"It isn't the youngster who needs correction," said he in a recent address before the Nebraska Conference for Social Work. "Nine times out of ten, it's the parent."

And then, with apologies to none, he proceeded to advocate PUBLIC WHIPPING POSTS FOR WORTHLESS PARENTS.

Nor does "worthless" mean merely the brutal bully—the drunkard—the shrew. Such parents are obvious offenders. But there are others, often esteemed estimable, who are as great, or even a greater menace to childhood.

The mother who is so busy bossing civic affairs or accumulating culture that she has no time to mold her own offspring—

The father who thinks he has done his duty when he pays the bills, and who couldn't tell you his own children's ages or school grade if you paid him a bonus—

The hovering mother who turns her boys and girls into spineless parasites and cowards by her constant protection—

The proud, indulgent dad who allows the heir of the house to become a vicious little pest—

The hysterical woman who attains the satisfaction her neurotic spirit craves by making emotional punching bags of her children—

They are all Public Enemies in Father Flanagan's eyes—and he believes we'd save millions of dollars now expended for prison upkeep and eliminate a national disgrace if they were put to the public lash.

And here's one writer who is in loud and hearty agreement. Don't whip the child. To do so is to take beastly advantage of your strength and his weakness, and is a shameful confession of your own mental inadequacy.

BUT WHIP THE PARENT WHO IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE CHILD'S DELINQUENCY. THE SILLY, SELFISH MOTHERS.... THE INDIFFERENT FATHERS. ...THE PARENTS WHO SPOIL OR EXPLOIT THEIR CHILDREN. ...AND THOSE WHO BRING BABIES INTO THE WORLD WITH NOT AS MUCH SENSE OF RESPONSIBILITY AS A COMMON CAT. GIVE THEM WHAT THEY DESERVE, SAY I. AND MEDALS TO FATHER FLANAGAN!

As Others See It

Weather Changes Bring Aches Physician Explains

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE RELATIONSHIP of certain aches, pains, fevers and other symptoms to changes in the weather has long been a matter of discussion among patients, to which doctors have paid very little attention. We have now, however, an enormous treatise on the subject, "The Patient and the Weather," in four volumes, by William F. Peterson (published at Ann Arbor, Mich., by the Edwards Press). Dr. Peterson believes that there is a basis of explanation for the changes that are brought about by damp, cold, etc.

The soldier's old wound which pains him, the paroxysms of asthma that occur at certain times of the year regardless of pollen, catching cold, the flare-up of attacks of arthritis, the headaches that come in hot weather, the winds that bring neuralgia, are not simply vagaries of the mind or supersitions of the individual.

Condition Affected by Weather.

Even in such a case as the Maguire girl who was for so many years in a semi-comatose condition, the fluctuations in the condition were shown to have a definite relation to climatic conditions. There is even described by a physician by the name of Wilson, such a thing as "laryngeal constipation."

The idea suggested here is that these complexes are accompanied by chemical changes in the body induced by external weather conditions. The unstable individual with low capillary blood pressure and "a tendency toward acidity" (the author's words) is more susceptible to meteorological fluctuations. It is not only such things as neuralgic pains and rheumatic pains and asthma, but even the condition of heart and kidney patients fluctuates with the weather changes during the year. Thus there is always a flare-up of heart and kidney troubles in March, the accumulation of the winter cold and dampness.

Patients who can afford it have long since found this out for themselves and seek milder climates during the late winter and early spring months, but at least they may be glad to know that the medical profession no longer thinks they are wasting their money, but are really doing themselves some good.

Deficit May Be Larger Than Expected.

AS WE REMARKED a week or so ago, one of our "troubles" may be that the budget IS balanced.

Now read this from the Alexander Hamilton Institute:

"While the 1937-1938 budget figures reveal a deficit, the government's financial operations during the current year, provided that they coincide with the budget estimate, will exert a deflationary influence on the general monetary situation in contrast to the inflationary role which the government has played since 1930.

"The figure on expenditures for the current year includes $1,075,000,000 which will be placed in trust funds under provisions of the Social Security act. Since this amount will exceed the net deficit of $695,000,000, it is apparent that the government will put back into circulation less money than it takes out in the form of taxes.

"With the government's financial operations thus having a deflationary effect, the question arises as to whether a sufficiently inflated situation will be maintained to provide the government with the anticipated revenue without recourse to higher tax rates. At the present time, this does not seem likely since all other factors making for inflation seem to be losing their strength. The federal deficit this year may be consequently larger than is now anticipated.

"Such a development would put the government back into the situation as an inflationary influence, and thus establish a vicious circle which might conceivably end in the ultimate collapse of the government's credit. Higher taxation or a curtailment of expenditures would provide the only means of preventing such an outcome."

IN PHILIPPINES, TOO?

The Filipino government seems to be having a New Deal of its own. Read this in the Philippines Herald of Manila:

"Asserting that any industry that cannot pay decent wages to its laborers has no right to exist, President Quezon this morning reiterated his determination to secure a better deal for the working class and improve their living conditions.

"The statement was made as a comment on the recent speech of Sugar Administrator Rafael Alunan before the Rotary club. While the president saw some very good points in the Alunan speech, he declared that he could not agree with some of the theories voiced by the latter.

"When, for example, Commissioner Alunan said that no arbitrary determination of wages should be made without first investigating the conditions of the industry affected, such a principle is sound. If, however, Commissioner Alunan meant that if and when an industry cannot afford to pay better wages, it is justified in paying wages which are not sufficient to provide a working man with the essentials of life, President Quezon said he cannot agree with him.

"'If,' said the president, 'an industry can only continue to operate by depriving the working man of what he needs to live, that industry has no right to exist'."

PROBLEM NO. X-37,278

The Roosevelt administration has another problem:

How to explain why it was so eager to rent six destroyers (old models but still good) to a country that was going Fascist rapidly—Brazil. The chief explanation is desired by the Latin American countries which have not gone Fascist and which suppose they are on the same side of the fence as the United States.

The Brazilian government was supposed to have desired the craft in order to prevent a Fascist uprising by Germans in Brazil.

Lessons by Police.

When a uniformed patrolman goes before a class in a grade school and talks about safety and obedience to the law, good educational work is being done. Such a plan is being carried out by members of the department now. If the matter is properly presented, the boys and girls will get an understanding for the rest of their lives of the importance of orderly living and a respect for the rights of others. You and Your Nation's Affairs

A Reckoning at Hand.

By WALTER E. SPAHR
Professor of Economics, New York University.

The recession in the stock market which has been in effect since March, 1937—the so-called Roosevelt recession—has grown out of discouraging prospects for business. Most of this discouragement can be traced to the bad economics employed by our present federal government. This again illustrates that in time the steady march of economic forces catches up with foolish man-made devices and economic absurdities of politics and overthrows them and often their sponsors. It is largely with such devices as artificial demogogic economics that the game of politics in government is played.

A peculiar mixture of so-called astute politics and so-called New Deal economics has provided a fantastic interlude for our people since March, 1933. The "astute politics" has been largely an appeal to the emotions of the untrained masses. The New Deal "economics" has consisted largely of attempts to legislate wishful thinking into reality.

Efforts by the government to control and raise prices and wages are cases in point. Prices are the reflection of the operation of the forces of supply and demand. Sometimes these forces are freely competitive; sometimes they are monopolistic in nature.

A rise in the price of a commodity invites an increase in the supply of that commodity or the use of a substitute for it and it is a brake on demand if all other things remain the same. This is likewise true of the price paid for labor. Therefore is it not a peculiar thing for the government to suppose that, if there is great unemployment, the way to increase the demand for labor is to raise the price of labor? Would any producer who finds it difficult to sell his product at a certain price be foolish enough to suppose he could sell more if he raised the price? Has not unemployment been prolonged and have not employers been substituting machinery for high priced labor?

Then, too, we have seen various attempts to bolster the prices of agricultural products by artificial devices. Do not these higher prices invite a greater supply and has not that been the result? Does not the cotton situation provide a striking example of the consequences that can flow from an attempt to change prices artificially? Is it not foolish to suppose that with a change in prices, demand and supply will not also change, and perhaps in a direction not desired? With respect to cotton, for example, the foreign demand declined and much of our foreign market went to other nations; at the same time our supply increased to an unprecedented extent. As a consequence, cotton prices have fallen sharply, and, if these prices are expressed in terms of the pre-devaluation gold dollar, present cotton prices are at about the lowest level of the depression. Cases could be multiplied.

The point is, that prices are natural reflectors of the forces of supply and demand, and should be treated as such. It is an amazing thing to observe the extent to which the notion has spread that a result can be treated as a cause, and that economic ills can be cured by placing the cart before the horse. The damage to this nation that has flown from the attempts to convert a natural result ino a casual factor, is probably incalculable. It has been supposed, apparently that business would expand and employ more people if the costs of labor and taxes were increased; or that railways could prosper if their costs were increased without an adjustment in rates or income; or that new capital would flow into industry if the prospects for profits were impaired; or that business would expand in the face of constant governmental attacks and restrictions; that general real purchasing power can be increased measurably or for any important period of time without a prior increase in production.

The present federal government, to accomplish its various purposes, has increased the federal debt from $19 billions to $37 billions, an increase of approximately $18 billions. It has been estimated that very close to this amount has been lost in the drop of the prices of stocks since March 1937. If this estimate is even approximately accurate, it provides a sad commentary on the effectiveness of the government's spending program. This program was launched to "increase the purchasing power of the public. Expenditures have often been made for foolish purposes. The operation of economic laws, conflicting government measures and human reactions, have destroyed the effects of the spending. A very bad feature of it all is that if we are headed downward into another severe business recession, we will go into it with the government's huge debt at its peak and with nothing having been done to meet the contingency of another depression.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

THE FIXED HEART: My heart is fixed, O God, my heart is fixed: I will sing and give praise.—Psalms 57:7.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

MOST laughs and applause go to the comedian or the comedienne. Few in the average audience realize the finesse and value of the feeder or straight man. Yet without him most gags would fall flat. In a large crowded theater laugh results depend largely on timing.

And that is where the straight man shines. Rudy Vallee has developed into a crackerjack straight man although he grows just a trifle too precise. George Burns opens the way deftly for Gracie Allen's outrageous blunders. A split second will often make a good gag or a poor jest.

Jay Brennan, teamed opposite the rowdy female impersonator, Bert Savoy, was one of the most capable of straight men. At many opening performances the frightened Savoy was fairly bucked over the line by Brennan's savoir-faire. Jim Corbett was also quick on the uptake as a straight man.

Then there is Cliff (Charlie) Hall, who is a foil to Jack Pearl's Baron Munchausen. He is unrivaled in jockeying a gag to the barrier for the fast getaway. Straight men do not get the pay or glory of the comics — but their pay is pretty high at that.

Harold Ross, of the New Yorker, is reputedly one of the most temperamental editors—flying into sudden rages and as suddenly turning to office pranks with the enthusiasm of a school boy. More than almost any editor of his time, he has developed a new school of art humor, a twist that finds expression in such delineators as Peter Arno, Helen Hodkinson, Otto Soglow, Georgia Price, Shermund and Thurber. Not one of them was old enough for the she-she jokes of the Life and Puck days, and each is representative of a new type of humor that has burgeoned in their generation.

H. P. Burton, the Cosmopolitan editor, is one of the least spectacular but one of the best liked of the magazine chiefs. He has no inclination to publicize himself and can rarely be induced to sign some of his editorial pronouncements, which are invariably polished and lucid. I have never seen a picture of him in print or caught him flitting from table to table in the Algonquin lunchtime show-offery. One of his great assets is his enthusiasm. When an author turns in a serial, short story or essay, he has an immediate impression by telephone and telegraph that the entire editorial force has taken a day off to sing hossanahs and dance in the street.

The late Horace Lorimer had the reputation of having the iciest exterior of the great editors. He had his favorites and stuck to them like glue, even when their best writing years were behind. He especially hated New York and was not here more than a dozen times in his life. He suggested Cobb's story, "Twixt The Bluff and The Sound." He would invariably detour New York when going to cities farther east. The elevation of Wesley Stout to Lorimer's post has resulted in many changes. Stout has a younger viewpoint and perhaps fresher enthusiasms. Many old guard writers have been dropped and others are to be cast away when their contracts are fulfilled. From a financial standpoint, it is certain Lorimer was America's most successful editor. He had large stock interests in his publication and was several times a millionaire. He farmed as a hobby, but made it pay.

Most Saturday Evening Post editorials, I hear, are now written by Wesley Stout, although Harry Leon Wilson and several old time standbys turn in an occasional screed. Certainly, under the new order, they show more vigour than the dull platitudinous pap that for years made the Post readers merely glance when they came to that page and hurry on.

The Boston, Nimble, has given way to a series of his goofy spells again. And work is not going on as usual around this shop. When he puts on an act everything stops in all departments. It started when he awakened from a nap suddenly and began barking as though something had him. When fully awake and realizing how sappy he had been, he sneaked off in a corner and hid his face between his paws for another snooze. But every now and then he would pop up suddenly, the hair on his back would bristle, and he would circle about stiff-legged with a menacing growl. The cause of his conniptions—a big left-over bottle-fly that was giving him the buzz, the fraidy!

POWER LOANS, GOLD PROGRAM ATTACKED AGAIN

Supreme Court Receives New Challenges of Two New Deal Measures.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Validity of two New Deal programs—Public Works administration loans to municipalities for power systems and Nationalization of Gold—was challenged anew today in the supreme court.

The gold program was challenged by Arthur W. Machen, Baltimore, whose suit to collect interest on a gold clause bond called by the treasury in 1935 will be argued soon. The brief asked the court to compel the treasury to pay the intervening interest coupons.

A brief of the Alabama Power Co. charged that if certain PWA loans and grants were completed the company's business in at least four Alabama communities will be "wholly destroyed."

The entire PWA power program, the company charged, is unconstitutional.

Holds Acts Void.

The brief charged specifically that the National Industrial Recovery act, and the 1935 Emergency Relief Appropriation act, under which the program was inaugurated, are void because they delegate excessive powers to the executive branch of the government.

The program, the brief added, will have the "necessary effect" of extending federal control over matters "reserved to the states or the people by the Tenth amendment", and "will have the direct and necessary effect of destroying the balance established by the constitution between the federal government and the states."

The four PWA loan and grant agreements involved in the company's challenge, would provide new municipal power systems for Decatur, Hartselle, Guntersville and Russellville, all in northwestern Alabama. The company said its properties in the four towns have a value of approximately $570,000.

Machen's brief conceded that there was no ground to force the government to pay principal of gold clause bonds in gold content specified on the face of the bonds at present, but argued that in lieu of such payments the treasury legally can be forced to pay on all interest coupons falling due before maturity of the bonds.

Such payments however, the brief conceded, may be in any legal tender, and do not necessarily call for gold payments.

Machen differed in this point from the contentions of Charles A. Taft, Cincinnati attorney and son of the late President Taft, who has a similar suit pending in the court challenging constitutionality of the government's gold program.

Taft however, seeks payment of the interest coupons in gold.

Secret of Woman Who Posed as Man, Sealed By Death

OYSTER BAY, N. Y.—(AP)—Death today held the secret of why "Alfred Grouard," a woman, masqueraded for 14 years as a male butler and chief in the household of Joseph M. Sears, retired millionaire publisher.

Investigators were baffled by the lack of information about the woman's early life.

Sears, who said the discovery was an "amazing surprise," explained that his wife, the late Mrs. Anna Wentworth Caldwell Sears, had engaged the butler from a newspaper advertisement.

Fifteen fellow servants, kept at a distance by Alfred's air of austerity, also failed to pierce the deception.

Alfred, tall, about 55 and weighing 180 pounds, was regarded as a "perfect servant." In 13 years she never had asked for a day off.

Her true sex was discovered after her death yesterday.

She refused medical attention until her death.

HUNT BODY OF RAIL FIREMAN

Rescuers Dig In Wreckage of Michigan Ore Train.

HANCOCK, Mich.—(UP)—Rescue crews dug into tons of mine rock today in search of the body of Walter Lauren, 37, fireman of a Quincy mining company ore train, after a wreck in which Engineer Joseph Schneiderhorn, 55, was killed.

The locomotive and three of the 15 cars loaded with mine rock plunged through a trestle yesterday at the Quincy Mill Run. County officials believed heavy rains had softened the creek banks, losening the support for trestle timbers.

Schneiderhorn, a Quincy resident, was killed at the throttle of the engine. Fireman Lauren, who lives in Hancock, was buried under the rock.

4 BURGLARIES

ASHLAND—Thives looted four cottages at Spring Lake, north of Ashland, over the week-end, according to a report issued by Sheriff H. F. Wallett.

Articles stolen included cooking utensils, canned goods, a traveling bag, blankets and other supplies.

LIFE'S HECTIC, DICK LIKES IT

Being Movie Idol Isn't All Fun But Actor Powell Has No Complaints.

Wermuth acted as a sort of bumper, taking the hundreds of telephone calls: "Could I speak to Dick and Joan just to see if they sound the same in real life?" . . . "This is the so-and-so fraternity. We're having a dance tomorrow night. Would Dick just drop in later in the evening and sing a number or two for us?" . . "This is the so-and-so company. May we send Miss Blondell some of our new soap? . . . "This is the so-and-so company. We'd like to have Dick pose for a picture with our new product . . ."

It went on endlessly, all the time Powell was getting ready to go to Public auditorium for his afternoon show. It took Wermuth an hour and a half to shave while answering the telephone. Why didn't they refuse to have calls sent to his apartment? Because in the next few days, all America would be saying that Dick Powell had gone high hat.

His mail was equally interesting. "My fiance has looked forward to your coming to Cleveland for weeks. He is in Polytechnic hospital now as the result of an auto accident. . . We don't know whether he will get well or not . . If you could only come out and see him, maybe he'll pull through . . ." There were loads of requests for money, contributions to all sorts of charities

* * *

"And the worst of it is," Dick said, "if I contribute I'll be criticized for buying publicity through charity, and if I don't give, I'll be accused of not being generous."

As a matter of fact, Wermuth told me the two stars are making a contribution to the Cleveland Community Fund and the Children's Toy fund, but only on condition that it isn't published until after they have left the city.

The minute Powell arrived in his dressing room at Public auditorium, the parade began. The phone rang constantly, people outside the door were using all sorts of subterfuges to get inside. Some wanted pictures of Powell, others wanted autographs, some simply wanted to see him and shake hands—or else they wanted him to give them something.

One smoothie introduced himself and recalled that he and Powell had actually worked together in some theater in earlier years, and would Dick mind stepping outside the room for just a second and having a picture taken with an old friend? Certainly not, glad to. But just before, the camera snapped, the man brought on a new mechanical contraption which is being placed on the market and asked Dick to "merely lean on it, so it would show in the picture." That was the only time I heard him swear, even a little bit. His contract strictly forbids commercial posing without Warners' sanction.

* *

The day before, while Joan was in the dressing room, lying down on the couch, the guard opened the door a trifle to ask if someone could be admitted and in an instant a strange woman pushed him aside, dashed into the room and dumped a box of make-up on the feminine star's tummy. "Here," she said breathlessly, before she could be taken out by the guard, "this is so-and-so's make up. Use it. You'll never use any other."

Back at the hotel apartment last night there was another accumulation of mail and telephone calls and invitations—and people all over the lobby sought a "close-up" of the star. (Joan had remained at the hotel). I was literally "dead on my feet," punch-drunk from trying to keep up with Powell. "I can't take it," I told him, "and I'm going home to die."

"This is nothing. You should get caught in a street jam with us sometime. But seriously, do you know what would happen if all these hectic days should suddenly stop, and people no longer stampeded us? We'd be out of a job, and a former movie star out of a job is more pathetic than a plumber out of a job—because the plumber can always come back."

* * *

But for all his bouyancy he has his worries and his problems. The type of pictures he makes, for instance. He's pretty sick of them, but he can't expect his bosses, the Warners, to feel the same way so long as they still can gross a million on one of the Powell musical shows.

He wants to do some straight roles with good stories. One of his greatest worries is that he photographs as though he were about five feet five, when as a matter of fact he's six feet and weighs 175 pounds.

Not the least of his problems is that he can't save as much as he should out of his salary. If he makes $300,000 a year, for instance, Uncle Sam, California and his agent take $219,000, and most of the remainder must go for the thousand and one demands on a movie star, and their living expenses. Taxes and agents fees take 73 per cent of all that Powell and his wife make.

* * *

And the personal side: he's about as temperamental as the corner grocer . . . and is sincerely anxious to make his marriage (this first) a success . . . thinks his stepson the cutest thing in youngsters . . . would rather fish than make money . . . never had any silly plan to go to Hawaii on his trim yacht . . . they aren't going to have a baby as currently reported but would be glad if they were . . . after his current picture, "Hollywood Hotel," hopes his company will permit him to grow up and be his age, which is 33 and not 29 as his press agent insists. . . . And will start his new radio program for Lucky Strike about Nov. 24. . . . He's a swellish sort of person, a regular guy and not, as you may think, a perpetual freshman or model for a uniform.

old relief debt, however, and used the state money for direct relief purposes. Since the monthly bills averaged about $3,500, it was possible to accumulate a surplus in the relief fund of about $7,000.

That amount, with $4,400 received from the state last week, comprises the total relief resources of the county at present. Although last month's relief bills have not been paid, they are expected to total nearly $7,000, double the monthly bills during the summer, Beck declared.

A number of plans which have been suggested to provide relief funds will be considered by the legislature when it convenes Nov. 29. One proposes that the counties meet relief needs from an estimated $18,000,000 surplus collection of real estate taxes.

Another, which calls for the levying of taxes outside the 10-mill limitation, has drawn widespread criticism throughout the state.

Richland county has only one levy in excess of the 10 mills It is for .6 of a mill and provides funds for retiring about $100,000 in road bonds due in 1940.

RENEW HEARING IN GAS BATTLE

Cleveland, Ohio Fuel Argue Over Property Valuations.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Hearing of the East Ohio Gas company's appeal from Cleveland's 55-cent gas rate ordinance resumed today before the Ohio Utilities commission after Spencer W. Reeder, special counsel for Cleveland, sought to show that George I. Rhodes, company witness, had been affiliated with East Ohio's parent organization, the Standard Oil Co.

Rhodes, vice president of an engineering firm, has submitted written testimony on valuation of East Ohio properties. The company contends present gas rates are confiscatory and requested a rate of approximately 75 cents per thousand cubic feet.

Plans were made during the business session for the election of officers to be held Dec. 5 by the appointment of the following nominating committee: Clifford Smith, Hershel Johnston, Harold Hanno and Dawson Swisher.

NO BUSINESS, SO SCHOOL BOARD ENDS SESSION IN 25 MINUTES

The Mansfield board of education set another record for brevity in its meeting last night, adjourning after a session which lasted just 25 minutes.

There wasn't any thing to vote on—except to order the bills paid, and Supt. W. L. Miller cut his report to the board to one page, the smallest in months.

"Everything apparently is in good condition and there was nothing to report," he told board members.

J. B. Moke, superintendent of buildings, offered the same explanation. He had no written report, telling the board that improvement and repair work on the school buildings is being completed before cold weather makes outside work impossible.

He added, however, that an additional room at the Carpenter building has been put in shape for use as a deaf school class room.

The monthly attendance report submitted by Supt. Miller showed the Woodland school with a percentage of 98.5 for October, the best of any of the schools. The same school, which has an enrolment of 106 pupils, had no cases of absence during the month and only 12 cases of tardiness.

The Western elementary school was second in attendance, reporting a percentage of 98.2 and no absences and only nine tardy cases. Brinkerhoff school had a monthly attendance of 98 per cent, but listed 15 cases of tardiness.

Total enrollment for the month was 6,505 with an average daily attendance of 6,173.3. During the month there were 3,806 pupils who were neither absent nor tardy.

Mother Accused of Killing Young Son, Optimistic.

HOLLIDAYSBURG, Pa.—(AP)—Mrs. Margaret Karmendi, cheered by a supreme court decision giving her a third chance for life, was certain today that "Almighty Father will permit me to prove my innocence."

The 24-year-old Altoona mother, twice convicted with her sweetheat of slaying her young son with a railroad spike, was asleep at the time the supreme court ruling granting her a new trial was handed down.

Upon receiving the news she embraced the jail matron, crying and laughing alternately, her attorney Frank J. Reiser said.

In a nearby sell was Roy Lockard, condemned to be electrocuted for killing the woman's three-year-old son, Matthew, because he interferred with their dates.

CON-SURVEY, NEW DIRECTORY OF CITY, COMES OFF PRESS

Another Mansfield city directory, dressed in a green and red cover and stamped in gold, came off the press yesterday.

Published by the Baldwin Con-Survey company of Springfield, Ill., and the Mansfield Printing company, the latest city directory contains a number of features included for the first time in a Mansfield directory.

One is a criss-cross listing of telephone owners, making it possible to find names and addresses from telephone numbers. Another is a complete list of state office holders and members of the United States senate and house of representatives.

The book sets the population of the Mansfield area at 40,715, based on listings, in the directory, according to the publishers' statement. The names beginning with S head the list. There are 5,151 under that classification. The B's are next with 4,501 and the C's third with 3,992 The book has no names beginning with X and only 19 that start with Q.

In the listing of city residents, the directory gives the name, occupation and address and the telephone number

A special section of the book printed on yellow paper is devoted to a buyers' guide, or an index of the business and professional firms in the city, while the front of the book also includes a street guide with the residents names and telephone and house numbers and an encircled H to indicate home owners.

The directory has 629 numbered pages.

HOLMES COUNTY TO ESTABLISH RELIEF STORES

Trustees Name Distribution Points for Surplus Foods Sent by Government.

MILLERSBURG — A special meeting of all township trustees of Holmes county was held to discuss relief conditions in the various townships and how the federal surplus commodities should be handled.

As a result, it was decided to establish points at stores throughout the county where eligible families may call for their distribution.

Stores in the following towns were named as distributing points: Millersburg, Clark, Glenmont, Kilibuck, Welcome, Nashville, Big Prairie, Holmesville, Benton, Winesburg, Berlin and Walnutcreek. Notices will be mailed by Miss Edythe Low, relief director, to those eligible and they are to keep in touch with the store of their district for the next shipment of commodities.

PROBE RAID BY HOODED GROUP

Police Told Night Club Damaged, Patrons Forced to Leave.

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—Authorities investigated today a raid by men and women in Ku Klux Klan regalia on the La Paloma night club. The proprietor said the place was ransacked, entertainers were assaulted and a sum of money stolen.

Al Youst, operator of the resort on the outskirts of town, reported to the sheriff's office the hooded raiders descended last night following a public initiation of 150 new klansmen at a city playground, ordered his patrons to leave and forced the club to close.

He charged $360 in cash and a $7 watch was stolen from him and that someone kicked a hole in a $125 bass drum.

SHELBY GETS CENSUS CARDS

SHLEBY—The unemployment census opened in Shelby and adjoining rural routes today by the distribution of approximately 3,000 registration cards, according to Postmaster Leo McGraw. The census includes all unemployed and partly employed workers in addition to these on emergency works projects of the government, McGraw said.

In urging the cities of Shelby and vicinity to fill out the cards, McGraw pointed out that the information would be held confidential by the government. Assisting in the census is the citizens committee selected by Mayor D. B. Young consisting of R. T. Crowe, chairman; C. W Swanger, H. L. Shreffler, R. I. Castor and Mildred Armstrong.

MRS. MUNDY, 83, DIES IN SHELBY

She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Clarence Leemaster, Mrs. Earl Dunlap and Mrs. Derron of Shelby, and Mrs. George Bricker of Pennsylvania; a son, Muriel of Shelby; a brother, Frank Caltey of Salem, Mo., and 13 grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Services will be held at Barkdull funeral home at 2 p. m., Thursday in charge of Rev. M. P. Paetznick. Burial will be in the London cemetery.

DISCUSS PLANS FOR ADDITION

SHELBY—The board of education of the Shelby public schools met last night in regular session for the purpose of discussing proposed plans of an addition to the high school building, according to C. G. Keck, superintendent.

The board's $80,000 bond issue passed at the past election and work will be started early next spring on the construction. The new plans will add an addition to the high school building.

GIVE RELIGIOUS PLAY

LUCAS—A religious play, "The Unlighted Cross," will be presented in St. Paul's church here Wednesday evening by a cast of 13 young people of the Lucas Luther League, according to Rev. Carl Driscoll, pastor.

The play will be presented under the direction of Rev. Driscoll.

TEAM FETED

GALION — The 1937 football champions of the N C O league, Galion High school Orangemen, their two coaches, Robert Corry and John Burnison, and several other guests, were complimented with a banquet given by the Galion Rotary club at First Lutheran church Monday night.

O. E. Hill, superintendent of schools, presided for the meeting. He announced the Galion high gridders as champions of the league by one point.

PLAN FESTIVAL

Galion School Groups Draft Program for Fair.

GALION—Final arrangements were made at a meeting of the Parent-Teacher association of the West elemeatary and Junior high school for the fall festival to be held Friday night, Nov. 19, at the building.

Features of this fair will be a program in the auditorium, cafeteria supper at 5 o'clock, a pet show, and various booths. Business was conducted by Mrs. S. A. Rhoades.

Rev. Harry Merle, pastor of First Lutheran church, addressed the group on the subject, "The Church's Responsibility for the Citizens of Tomorrow." Reports of the state convention held at Cleveland were given by the delegates, Mrs. Rhoades and Mrs. Ralph Spaide.

Terms World War History's 'Most Colossal Failure'

Measured by its vaunted purpose to make the world safe for democracy, the World war was the most colossal failure in history, according to Major Norman A Imrie, associate editor of the Columbus Dispatch, speaker at Tuesday's meeting of the Rotary club, held at the Mansfield Leland hotel.

With "This Befuddled World" as his subject, Major Imrie told of conditions in Europe, as revealed during visits in nine European countries while on a recent trip abroad.

Special reference was made to the dictatorships that have developed in Russia, Germany and Italy, with consequent crushing of minority expression and absolute control of newspapers

Warning against efforts toward concentration of power in the United States, such as led to dictatorships in other countries, was voiced by the speaker.

Major Imrie is to be in Mansfield again Friday evening as the speaker at the annual meeting of the Richland County Automobile club.

DENIES SLAYINGS

SOUTH PARIS, Me. —(U.P.)— Paul Nathaniel Dwyer, 18, alleged killer of a country doctor and his wife, pleaded not guilty when arraigned in superior court today on a murder charge.

Declared sane by state alienists, the youth will go on trial here Nov. 30, facing life imprisonment if convicted.

MEETS ON FIRE HOSE PURCHASE

Council to Consider Chief's Supply Request at Special Session Tonight.

While numerous pieces of minor legislation, held over from their regular meeting on election night will be acted on, the major topic of discussion is expected to come before city council, in a special session tonight, is the question of the purchase of new hose for the fire department.

C. N. Shultz, member of the finance committee said yesterday that legislation had not yet been prepared for the purchased of the hose and that it would be up to council members tonight to decide what action should be taken.

Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger has asked council to purchase 2,500 feet of new hose to replace defective sections that are now in use.

Consideration of the request was taken up by council's finance committee, after two sections of hose burst three weeks ago while firemen were fighting a blaze at a North Main street dwelling.

PUBLISH BOOKS

Galion School Head, Teachers Become Authors.

GALION—A series of language books entitled, "Building Language," written by Galion people is being published by the Progress Press, Inc., of Indianapolis.

A book for grade one was prepared by J. F. Bemiller, former Galion superintendent of schools, and Mrs. Mildred Miles Roberts of Beloit, Wis., a former Mansfield resident. Book two, for grade two, was prepared by Bemiller and Juanita Curren, a teacher at present in the Galion schools, and Almeda Craun Etsinger of Middletown, former art instructor in the Galion schools.

TOBACCO BELT GETS BIG SLICE OF PROSPERITY

Prices Increase 6 to 15 Cents and North Carolina Growers Have Bumper Crop.

RALEIGH, N. C.—(UP)—While the rest of Dixie is worrying over the doldrums of the cotton market farmers of the North Carolina tobacco belt are experiencing one of their best seasons in history.

With prices averaging from 6 to 15 cents a pound higher than last year and a record crop in sight, Tar Heel growers expect to realize $130,000,000 or more from sale of the golden leaf. Less than half of the estimated crop of 600,000,000 pounds has been hauled to the auction floors, but already farmers have received $58,297,303 in cash from the buyers of the big tobacco companies.

Since it is the usual procedure to sell the low grade tobacco early in the season and save the choice leaf for the final months, tobacco experts predict that the yet unmarketed part of the crop will bring even higher prices. The marketing season continues through winter until about Feb. 1.

Grown on Small Farms.

North Carolina produces about three-fourths of American flue-cured tobacco. Most of it is grown on small farms, and it is all marketed at open auction in upward of 50 North Carolina cities. The farmers haul wagon and truck loads of leaf to large warehouses, where it is stacked in long rows. Then the auctioneer and sets of buyers move down the rows, each pile being sold to the highest bidder.

Last year the average price paid for a pound of tobacco on North Carolina markets was slightly more than 22 cents. This season, the auctions opened at 25 cents a pound and have been steadily rising. Statisticians predict the average for the entire season will be nearly 35 cents a pound.

The steady flow of cash from the giant tobacco companies—Reynolds, American, Imperial and the others—is the lifeblood of North Carolina commerce and business of all kinds. Tobacco farmers with hundreds and sometimes thousands of dollars in their pockets for the first time in a year are ready spenders, and they quickly make all the purchases that have been delayed during the planting and harvesting seasons.

HEAR EXPLORER

Foremen's Club Has MacMillan As Speaker Tonight.

A word and picture story of life in the Arctic regions will be presented to members of the Mansfield Foremen's club tonight by Capt. Donald B. MacMillan, one of the most noted of living explorers.

The talk, which will follow a dinner at 6:30 p. m. at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, will include a review of Capt. MacMillan's expedition to the North Pole and into the Arctic regions in a search for records left by preceding explorers.

Capt. MacMillan in numerous trips into the Far North since 1908, has recovered 22 valuable records which have gone into the making of maps of the regions north of the Arctic circle. His talk will be illustrated with motion pictures.

Other entertainment for tonight's program will be in charge of representatives of the Tappan Stove company.

VOLUNTEER FIREMEN IRKED

GREYBULL, Wyo.—(U.P.)—The volunteer fire department of Greybull answered an alarm by rushing to their fire house to get their engines, but the blaze destroyed a residence before they arrived. Somebody had broken into the fire hall and siphoned all the gasoline out of the fire engine tanks.

SHOWS DROP IN DEATHS, BIRTHS

Deaths in Mansfield dropped to a new low for the year during October, health department figures disclosed today.

Thirty-four persons died in the city last month as compared with 36 in September, the report of Dr. Roy C. Rehder, public health commissioner, shows. The largest number of deaths in any month this year was 49 in January.

Births also slid off last month with 61 recorded as compared to 79 for the month previous.

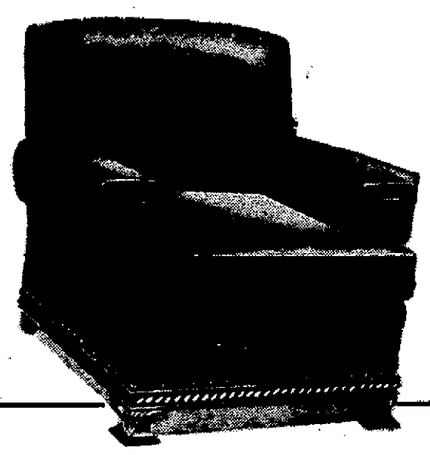

No figures were available on the monthly birth and death rates this year, Dr. Rehder said, but he predicted that the birth rate would show a marked increase over the 19.2 rate per thousand recorded in 1936.

The death rate is expected to show a slight decline from the 9.9 rate per thousand of last year. Records show that there has been a gradual decrease in the city death rate since 1932, when a 10.2 rate per thousand was reported.

MARKED TURTLE RETURNS

KINGSTON, Mo.—(U.P.)—Eldred Sackman caught a terrapin on his grandfather's farm near here 20 years ago. The boy released the animal after inserting a hog ring in its shell. Last week the turtle was discovered less than a mile from where it was released.

HERE COMES PACKARD FOR 1938

-the only cars that can make you all these promises!

MIRACULOUS RIDE—The new Packard Six and new Packard Eight (formerly called Packard 120) bring you the gentlest ride ever offered to motorists—a ride that literally re-makes roads!

UNEQUALLED SAFETY—These new Packards are outstanding in safety. Side-sway is eliminated and the danger of skidding is tremendously reduced.

REVOLUTIONARY REAR END—The foregoing things have been accomplished by a trio of epochal improvements which now bring the effect of independent wheel suspension to the rear end.

NEW QUIET BODY—As a result of years of research in cooperation with a great University, Packard brings you a really quiet all-steel body with an all-steel top.

MORE LUXURIOUS SIZE—Both the Packard Eight and Packard Six are seven full inches longer in wheelbase than last year. Bodies are far wider. Trunks challenge those of any cars for roominess.

SERVICE NEEDS CUT—The need for service is still further reduced. Example: Chassis lubrication is now needed only twice a year!

ENDURING BEAUTY—The famous Packard lines are now more beautifully streamlined than ever. But they still proclaim your car a Packard, still guard it from early style obsolescence. Only Packard gives you both long mechanical life and long style life!

EASY AVAILABILITY—YOU can afford one! See your Packard dealer. He will give you proof that, if you can afford to buy and operate any new car, you can afford to buy and operate a Packard!

YOU HAVE A DATE TUESDAY EVENINGS

Each Tuesday evening, at 9:30 E. S. T. over the N. B. C. Red Network, Packard brings you one of the most entertaining full-hour shows on the air! Lanny Ross, Charles Butterworth, and Florence George head a brilliant cast that entertains each week one of the topmost stars of radio, stage or screen!
